Open season

Starting at noon today, hundreds of Magic Valley hunters will comb the cornfields and beat the bushes in search of the quarry above. Those in the know say this year's pheasant hunting season, which lasts through Dec. 6, is expected to be very good.

World discord grows against Reaganomics

CANCUN, Mexico (UPI) — Opposition to President Reagan's economic plan for the world's poor nations started to build Friday, triggering fears of failure on the final day of the two-day 22-nation North-South economic summit.

Reagan's promises of talks to begin bridging the gap between the industrial and developing nations prompted a flurry of criticism from other leaders attending the summit conference.

But a White House spokesman said the president was standing firm in his opposition to a World Bank affiliate to help poor nations buy oil and to modify the international banking system to be more lenient to poorer nations.

"He came down here not expecting his position to meet with uniform applause," White House communications director David Gergen told reporters.

Nigerian Foreign Minister Ishaya Audu said Reagan's reference to emulating the U.S. capitalist system was not valid in the developing world because the United States had used "cheap labor with black slaves" to get a jump on other nations.

Audu said those who came to this Caribbean resort island with high hopes "might be disappointed" at the result of the conference.

"We had hoped for more, but Cancun is better than Philadelphia," quipped a top Algerian official in a sarcastic reference to a tough speech Reagan delivered last week before the World Affairs Council in Philadelphia in which he extolled the virtues of the capitalist system.

A spokesman for British Foreign Minister Lord Carrington said there was a consensus at the summit to promote global negotiations, that is, an international conference at which the rich and poor nations would sit down together to discuss a redistribution of the world's wealth.

However, some of the delegations doubted that Reagan's economic proposals were intended to lead to world-wide talks, previously rejected by Washington on the grounds the poor nations would gang up on the United States.

Reagan, in his proposal at Thursday's opening session,

Bunker Hill settles lead suit

BOISE (UPI) — Attorneys for Bunker Hill Co. and nine former Kellogg children settled out of court Friday in a $20-million lawsuit.

The suit claimed the northern Idaho company's lead emissions poisoned and permanently disabled the children.

An attorney for the children said the amount the company would pay to the children was "very large" — more than $2 million. Complete terms of the settlement will not be made public for weeks, attorneys said.

Lawyers representing Bunker Hill and its Houston parent company, Gulf Resources & Chemical Co., said they could not discuss how much money would change hands because the settlement involved a complex formula and would not be completely documented for weeks.

The settlement was pounded out during lengthy discussions behind closed doors with U.S. District Judge Ray McNichols. After the settlement was announced, McNichols dismissed the 12-member jury that had listened to six weeks of trial testimony.

McNichols gave the lawyers 45 days to submit documentation of the settlement.

Company attorney John G. Layman said a gag order against trial participants that Bunker Hill had obtained due to "adverse publicity" did not extend to the terms of the settlement. He said the settlement included reimbursement of costs and expenses, with some money up front and annuity-type payments to be given to the children over a period of years.

The 1977 suit accused the northern Idaho mine and smelter firm of harming the nine children through exposure to high levels of lead. It claimed the children suffered permanent mental and physical disabilities.

The children's lawsuit also said Bunker Hill negligently allowed lead emissions to reach hazardous levels in the mid-1970s — when the children lived in the Silver Valley mining region — and sought maximum profits at the expense of health considerations.

Housing, cars push up inflation rate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation surged in September, pushing the Consumer Price Index to a 14.8 percent annual rate despite tight money policy and a weak economy, the government reported Friday.

Housing costs, college tuition, used cars and medical care led the index upward.

The Labor Department said its 14.8 percent annual rate was compounded from a monthly 1.2 percent increase for September, compared to August's 0.8 percent rise. July's 1.2 percent increase ended a four-month string of considerably lower readings.

All figures were seasonally adjusted.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said the real spendable earnings of Americans declined 1.9 percent in September after seasonal adjustment — the biggest drop since April of 1979.

Over the past year, with inflation taken into account, real spendable earnings have decreased 4.4 percent.

The Consumer Price Index for September reached 279.3, meaning the cost of the government's sample "market basket" of goods and services that cost $100 14 years ago now cost $279.30.

"The total increase is somewhat disappointing," said Robert Ortner, chief administration economist at the Commerce Department. But he added, "There were some special circumstances."

Ortner said without mortgage interest rates, which apply only to new homebuyers, the overall index would have been far less, "in single digits."

A 1 percent increase in the FHA-insured mortgage interest rate for September contributed to a sharp increase in the housing component of the index, slightly more than half of the month's entire increase.

This month, the government-insured interest rate was reduced by 1 percent, which will benefit the October inflation rate reading.

Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, agreed with Ortner, saying, "The underlying rate of inflation remains below double digits."

Food price hikes and sharp increases in college tuition, books, fees and boarding also were temporary.

Most Americans gain an extra hour of sleep

TWIN FALLS — Safety-conscious school bus drivers are looking forward to the end of daylight-saving time Sunday, but late morning sunrises could return sooner next year.

Clocks should be set back one hour Saturday night. The time officially changes from daylight to standard at 2 a.m. Sunday, which then becomes 1 a.m.

Daylight time is observed by most of the country — including Idaho — from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October. Proponents say it saves energy and lives by more closely matching daylight hours with commuters' travel and work schedules.

Congress reportedly is thinking of extending the period by adding March and April, using the same arguments. School officials in rural Idaho districts, however, also are concerned about safety, and they are uneasy about the proposal.

"We're telling drivers to be extra careful now, because the sun is just coming up, and our roads are full of trucks in the fall," said Arlyn Bodily, the superintendent of the Valley School District. "Come Monday, I think we'll be much better off."

Shifting sunrise from 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 a.m. next March would not be in the best interests of school children, agreed Bob Pratt, the superintendent of Buhl schools.

United Press International reported this week that former presidents Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter supported the longer time change. President Ronald Reagan's position on the issue was not known.

Farmers were the most vocal in opposing creation of daylight-saving time in 1966. Many complained that equipment shops and retail stores would close an hour sooner, hindering the harvest.

Bill Loughmiller, a farmer north of Holister, said Thursday he hadn't heard any complaints recently. He guessed that farmers had acquired other, more pressing problems.

"The only thing I've always heard is that it's like the old Indian who thought his blanket was too short," Loughmiller said, "so he cut six inches off the bottom and sewed it on the top."

Social Security in worse shape than believed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New official figures Friday showed Social Security is in worse financial shape than previously thought.

Changes must be made in the Senate's stopgap bill or Medicare will run in the red by 1984.

Social Security actuaries, in a new report sent to Congress, estimate all three of the system's trust funds — Medicare, retirement and disability — will run out of money in 1984.

The estimates are based on soaring new costs for Medicare, which reportedly is paying at least $1 billion more a year than was projected when the Senate passed the Social Security bailout bill last week.

Inflation was blamed for the increased costs.

The Senate bill was designed to bail out Social Security through late 1989 or early 1990, when projections indicated new revenues would begin flowing in to bolster the system.

The Senate bill would take tax revenues from the Medicare and disability funds to firm up the sagging retirement fund, which experts said would otherwise run in the red next year.

The actuaries said their new figures show Medicare will fall "dangerously low" in 1983 and will be unable to pay benefits by 1984.

And the actuaries said in their latest projection that even if the Senate bill is rewritten to inject more tax money into Medicare to keep that fund solvent, all three funds will fall below safe levels as early as 1985 and will be unable to pay benefits by sometime in 1988.

Under "worst case" assumptions, the actuaries said, all three funds will run out of money in 1984.

The Senate bill would restore the $122-a-month minimum benefit eliminated by Congress this summer for most of the current 4 million recipients. The lost revenue would be made up by a new sick pay tax and a cap on family and survivor benefits.

Polish officials send military to 'force respect for the law'

GDANSK, Poland (UPI) — The government sent troops Friday into all towns to "force respect for the law" after the Solidarity union called a one-hour general strike next week.

The union is protesting harassment from the Communist authorities.

As Solidarity planned the second general strike in the history of post-war Poland for next Wednesday to protest dwindling food supplies, more than 250,000 workers walked out in wildcat strikes across the country.

"The state which is leaning toward downfall must undertake all necessary efforts aimed at survival," said a decree of the Communist government president headed by Prime Minister Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

It said the government was forced to take "decisive and unpopular actions" such as putting down "street provocations and forcing respect for the law."

The decree said Jaruzelski had ordered special military task forces — mostly soldiers whose army service last week was extended by two months — be sent into all districts, towns and townships.

Special government representatives also will be sent to the provinces to supervise actions of the task forces, which are to aid local authorities in combatting waste, speeding up food purchases and distribution, and rectifying disturbances in food supplies and improving transport.

The government said the troops would be charged with keeping economic order but it described the situation as "very dangerous" because "some Solidarity chapters" with were provoking a "trial of strength with the authorities."

"Some Solidarity leaders," it said, "do not hide their intention to stage a coup d'etat against the socialist state."

The government-decreed appealed for discipline and patriotism and warned that "the lack of law and order is especially dangerous in the face of the coming winter."

"An economic catastrophe inevitably would be a people's catastrophe," it said.

Soldiers have been used for months in special "flying squads" in cooperation with police to crack down on speculation and the free-wheeling black marketeering which has boomed as the official economy worsened.

The announcement, read on national television by government spokesman Jerzy Urban, came only hours after the Solidarity national leadership issued an appeal to all local chapters to halt their wildcat strikes and protests and join in a one-hour general nationwide work stoppage Wednesday.

The Solidarity leadership, meeting in their Baltic headquarters in Gdansk, said in a statement the strike was being called to protest police harassment of the union and the "disastrous" state of the shortage-plagued Communist economy.

Prison transfers troublemakers

BUSHNELL, Fla. (UPI) — Prison officials transferred 64 troublemakers out of racially torn Sumter Correctional Institution Friday and managed to restore an uneasy calm.

Rioting at the facility for hardened youthful convicts began after lunch Thursday and resulted in injuries to 10 inmates and one staff member before it was brought under temporary control at nightfall.

But fighting broke out a second time and continued through the night until the 64 "aggressive" inmates were transferred to the Florida State Prison.

"We had a few little confrontations last night, but nothing too bad. There were probably some bumps and bruises but no serious injuries," said Vernon Bradford, a spokesman for the prison system.

Philly teachers ask for support

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia teachers on strike since Sept. 8 began distributing 250,000 leaflets throughout the city Friday, urging parents and students to join a general strike and march on city hall next week.

The teachers representing workers throughout the city expected to decide by Monday whether they would honor Philadelphia Federation of Teachers President John Murray's request for a one-day city-wide strike next Wednesday.

Car answers voice commands

TOKYO (UPI) — Nissan Motor Co., manufacturer of the Datsun, Friday unveiled a computerized, voice-activated passenger car developed for the physically handicapped.

Apart from the steering, braking and acceleration systems, the Nissan prototype features a computer system that activates the car's other mechanisms through vocal command.

On orders from the driver, the computer orders lights and windshield wipers switched on or off, windows opened or closed and even the position of the driver's seat adjusted. Outside rear view mirrors are likewise voice-adjustable.

Nissan said the car was designed for physically handicapped drivers who can't use their hands. The car starts on voice command, and the driver controls the car's direction and speed through specially designed foot pedals.

Commands for the test run Friday were given in simple English words such as "wiper" followed by "on" or "off." But language apparently is not a problem. Nissan said the computer responds by identifying a set of personally recorded orders.

Band members collapse

FLINT, Mich. (UPI) — At least 22 people — most of them members of the Flint Beecher High School marching band — collapsed and went into convulsions Friday night during a halftime performance at the school's homecoming, police said.

"As to the cause I have no idea," said a Flint police officer. "The students appeared to be convulsing and were passing out and dropping over."

At least 16 of the students were members of the high school band, police said. The band members collapsed on the football field during their halftime show. Two of the other victims, who were not band members, reportedly were stricken inside the school on a dance floor.

The victims complained of feeling cold and nauseated before passing out. Police said all the band members drank from the same container of hot chocolate but the cause of the mysterious illness was still under investigation.

Officials said they were testing the water and checking for gas leaks in the school band room.

Ortner said, "We're still confident that inflation is now on a moderate downward trend which will continue and be reinforced by the softness in the economy that is developing," he said.

Economist William C. Dunkelberg, speaking for the National Federation of Independent Business, a lobbying group for small business, agreed inflation may slow down in future months, but for now its growth is contradicting forecasts of both the administration and the Federal Reserve Bank.

"It's not the kind of news the administration wanted," he said. He indicated the result may be to encourage the Fed to tighten the money supply even more. "This news will certainly lead the Federal Reserve to take a second look at how it's doing."

Of the seven categories of prices measured by the index, the miscellaneous grouping of "other goods and services" rose the most, 1.8 percent.

Next in line was a 1.3 percent rise in the category with the most influence on the overall index — housing. The increase for the month was accounted for by a 3.2 percent monthly increase in home-financing costs and a 0.7 percent increase in the cost of a house.

Both factors already are moderating in October. Rents went up 0.8 percent, two-thirds of the August increase.

The 1.2 percent increase for the month in transportation costs was the largest since February and mostly reflected more expensive used cars.

conditioned further U.S. initiatives on a case-by-case study of individual problems, a "cooperative spirit" for future talks and that the talks must be aimed at promoting new economic growth and not a "mere redistribution of wealth."

"The conditions Reagan imposed were an elegant way of saying 'no' to global negotiations," a Mexican official said.

"There are many delegations trying right now to convince Reagan to take a flexible position in trying to meet their concerns," said a French official.

Inside the conference hall, the delegates were dealing with the critical problem of how the poor nations can finance their economic development.

Earlier, Reagan said he had learned a lot about the needs of poor nations.

"I think great progress has been made," he told reporters in his Sheraton Hotel suite before going downstairs for the closing summit session.

At Washington's insistence, the delegates from eight industrialized and 41 developing nations will not adopt resolutions of a final communiqué.

However, President Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico and Premier Pierre Trudeau of Canada, the summit's co-hosts, were to issue a concluding statement.

Energy and trade were on the agenda of the final day's discussions at the pyramid-shaped Sheraton Hotel on Cancun, a plush island resort off the Yucatan peninsula. But the key issue was finance.

The 140 nations which classify themselves as developing pay $47 billion a year just in interest on their current debts. On a global basis, the non-oil producing developing nations use all of their export income just to pay for oil imports — leaving nothing for other imports of goods or technology.

Lopez Portillo, whose nation makes massive loans in order to develop its oil industry, complained that the size and terms of international loans are often linked to the political philosophy of the borrower.

Many delegates interpreted Reagan's opening session pledge to hold bilateral or regional talks with developing countries as an acceptance of the "global negotiations" of the borrower.

Energy and trade were on the agenda of the final day's discussions at the pyramid-shaped Sheraton Hotel on Cancun, a plush island resort off the Yucatan peninsula. But the key issue was finance.

demanded by the poor nations to overhaul the world's economic system in their favor.

But Reagan later clarified those remarks, saying Washington had not dropped its opposition to the idea as conceived by the Third World.

"If global negotiations is interpreted to mean some gigantic new international bureaucracy to be in charge, that we would be opposed to," he said.

Today's weather

Considerable cloudiness expected

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding: Considerable cloudiness through Sunday. Winds light except southwesterly near 10 mph afternoons. Highs upper 40s to low 50s today and Sunday. Lows near 30 degrees.

Camas Prairie, Halley, Wood River valley: Considerable cloudiness through Sunday. Highs middle to upper 40s today and Sunday. Lows 25 to 35.

Nader criticizes nuclear policies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said Friday President Reagan is seeking to prop up an ailing nuclear industry at taxpayers' expense.

But scientist Edward Teller said development of nuclear energy is vital for economic stability and peace.

The two men — leading spokesmen for opposite sides of the nuclear energy debate — testified before the House Interior subcommittee on oversight and investigations, which is holding the first congressional inquiry into the administration's nuclear energy program.

The administration plan released by the White House Oct. 8, would speed up the licensing process for nuclear reactors, lift the ban on commercial plutonium reprocessing, let the Department of Energy purchase plutonium from private suppliers and allow the military services to purchase commercial spent fuel for conversion to weapons-grade plutonium.

Nader said Reagan's "effort to prop up the nuclear industry with billions of taxpayer dollars is all that stands in the way of the collapse of nuclear power in the United States."

Reagan, he said, is converting the Department of Energy "into an arm of the nuclear industry."

Criticizing the administration for "massively increasing the federal nuclear budget," Nader said it supports such boondoggles as the Clinch River Breeder Reactor project while cutting billions from Social Security, school lunches,

RALPH NADER
taxpayers suffer

infant nutrition services and dozens of other social programs."

Nader called for an immediate shutdown of all nuclear powerplants, a moratorium on new construction and a ban on nuclear exports.

But Teller said the United States "must find substitutes for oil, and do so with all possible speed."

The nuclear physicist said the Soviet Union is encircling the oil-rich Middle East and increasing its control of Western Europe's major oil sources in order to make that continent "critically dependent on energy controlled by the Soviet Union."

"There can be little doubt that this dependence will ultimately be used to disrupt the NATO alliance," he said.

Reagan requests crime-fighting tools

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration asked Congress Friday for an arsenal of new legal tools to fight crime.

An emphasis was placed on curbing the trafficking and production of drugs, including marijuana.

Attorney General William French Smith, in presenting the package to Congress, assured the Senate subcommittee on criminal law he stands by his pledge last summer that combating violent crime is his No. 1 priority.

Under President Reagan's proposal, federal jurisdiction would be extended to include criminal repeaters who use guns to create new violence, and other chronic offenders.

Smith said the administration wants to eliminate narcotics traffic, which has created a "lost generation" of American youth and victimizes one of every three households.

New strategies, Smith said, would

"I believe we should first find which programs are workable. If we are diligent, we can expect eventual success."

— Attorney General William French Smith

link the FBI with Drug Enforcement Administration efforts, create Navy blockade of smuggling ships, impose stiffer prison terms on traffickers and confiscate their profits and property.

The administration also will seek more cooperation with "source countries" in combating drugs and, with congressional approval, will resume destroying foreign marijuana fields with herbicides.

To help curb violent crime, Smith said, U.S. attorneys will pool their information with local prosecutors, and federal buildings will be used to relieve overcrowded local prisons.

Smith said the administration's anti-crime program, drafted by a task force last summer, focuses on trying new approaches rather than throwing additional billions of dollars into yet another losing "war on crime."

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., argued the administration is unrealistic in expecting greater efforts with fewer people after cutting budgets for the FBI, the drug agency and U.S. attorneys.

"In any organization," Smith replied, "there are always ways of doing things better. If it begins to cut the muscle, I'm sure the president will be well aware of it."

Biden replied, "I firmly believe he is cutting muscle — not only that, cutting bone."

"I believe we should first find which programs are workable," Smith said. "If we are diligent, we can expect eventual success."

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., not only chided the administration for cutting funds, but also for attempting to make up the difference by "skirting the Constitution."

Leahy referred to the so-called "exclusionary" rule, which prohibits use of evidence obtained without strict compliance with constitutional safeguards in a defendant's trial.

The administration asked Congress to relax this rule, so a criminal would not go free simply because an officer, while acting in good faith, committed some technical violation.

Judge blocks abortion for raped 11-year-old

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — A juvenile court judge ruled Friday an 11-year-old who was allegedly raped by her mother's boyfriend cannot have an abortion because the medical risks exceed those of carrying the baby to term.

Kalamazoo County Juvenile Judge Donald Halstead, whose impartiality in the case was questioned when it was learned he signed an anti-abortion advertisement in a local paper earlier this year, said the abortion was not in the best interest of the young girl.

"The medical risks attendant to an abortion — poses serious medical concerns offsetting the wisdom of allowing the minor child to have the baby," said Halstead, who issued the ruling in a closed courtroom.

Both the girl — allegedly raped by her mother's live-in boyfriend on several occasions and her 9-year-old sister were made wards of the court after Halstead determined their mother, who opposed the abortion, was guilty of neglect.

Halstead refused to award custody of the girl to her father, who wanted the abortion, because he is an ex-convict recently released from prison on drug charges.

The attorney representing the girl's father said the man wanted his daughter to "have an abortion, finish her education and get on with her life."

The attorney, Brian Caplan, also said he would not appeal the decision. An appeal like would have been fruitless, since the girl's pregnancy had reached the 24-week limit for legal abortions.

It was learned Friday that Halstead earlier in the week — following the issuance of a federal order telling him to expedite his ruling — appointed an attorney, John Allen, to represent the unborn child.

Officials involved in the court hearing refused to reveal what role Allen took, saying all information in juvenile proceedings was confidential.

The juvenile abortion case had become a tug-of-war between pro- and anti-abortion groups.

"This ruling spares the young mother from the psychological trauma which would result from an abortion," said Barb Listing, president of the Right to Life of Michigan.

"I applaud Halstead's decision to allow the pregnant 11-year-old to give birth to her infant as a compassionate act of social justice."

"Phyllis Marsh, chairwoman of Children's Help and Legal Defense, said "We feel Judge Donald Halstead's decision to oppose an abortion for this 11-year-old child reflected his own personal feelings toward the issue of an abortion rather than ruling with the consideration based on the best interest of the child."

The group Ms. Marsh represented said Halstead's signature, along with hundreds of others, on an anti-abortion Mother's Day statement in the Kalamazoo Gazette rendered him unfit to preside in the case.

Administration fights delays in controller decertification

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration toughened its hard-line stance against striking air traffic controllers Friday.

Officials said they will fight any delay in decertification of the controllers' union and will not rehire strikers.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, however, said such a policy "would not be justice, but revenge."

An order by the Federal Labor Relations Authority Thursday revoking the bargaining status of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization was stayed temporarily by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

The court gave the government until 4 p.m. EST Monday to respond.

"The stay will continue until the court issues another order," deputy court clerk Robert Bonner said Friday.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Dennis Feldman said the Justice Department will file briefs "in opposition to the (PATCO) motion" on behalf of both the FAA and Transportation Department.

The union is seeking a stay pending final outcome of a planned appellate court appeal of the decertification order.

PATCO President Robert Poli, meanwhile, expressed confidence the public and Congress will force resolution of the impasse that began Aug. 3 when nearly 12,000 controllers struck FAA towers and radar rooms.

"I don't think PATCO will ever be dead," Poli said. "We are in a situation right now where the American public and the Congress are going to decide when this thing is over."

He said the public is waking up to "the fact that this is a union-busting attitude — a tactic (by the administration) to just blow our union away."

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said the government considers the court stay merely a procedural matter.

"When we file our papers and the court has a chance to review them, we think they'll reaffirm the action that's already been taken," he said.

Lewis made it clear the administration does not intend to rehire any striking controllers, saying it would lead to friction in control towers.

"We think it would be unsafe," he said.

Both Lewis and Poli were interviewed on ABC's "Good Morning America."

Poli said PATCO will argue to the appeals court that the labor relations authority, in meting out punishment for the strike, did not consider using lesser penalties imposed in past cases of walkouts by federal workers.

Kirkland, in a statement issued by the 15-million-member labor federation, suggested indirectly that the FAA rehire fired controllers now that the decertification order has been issued.

Record amount of feed used

Wheat price estimates rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Livestock producers used a record amount of wheat for feed this past summer, more than experts were predicting, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

That extra demand led the department to raise slightly its estimates of average wheat prices this year to between $3.80 and $3.95 per bushel. The previous estimate was a nickel less on the low end of the range.

In a world agricultural supply and demand estimate, the department said use of wheat for feed in June through September totaled 190 million bushels, 140 million bushels more than the same period a year earlier and 20 million bushels more than the previous record.

That led officials to raise their estimate of wheat use for feed in the current marketing year, which ends May 31, to 200 million bushels, a 75 million bushel increase from an estimate made just 10 days earlier.

Total consumption of the U.S. wheat crop domestically and abroad for this marketing year was estimated at 2.83 billion bushels, 80 million bushels above this year's record crop.

With wheat left over from previous years, carry-over stocks next spring are expected to be a little more than 900 million bushels.

"A large portion of the carry-over stocks will be in the farmer-owned reserve and government inventory, with free stocks expected to be at a low level," the department said.

The most common livestock feeds are corn, other feed grains and soybeans. When prices of those feeds are high and supplies are tight, producers have incentive to switch to wheat. Last year, farmers grew a record wheat crop, but feed grains and soybeans were stressed by drought.

Officials made no changes in projections of corn prices this season, which are expected to range from $2.60 to $2.90 per bushel.

The department said carry-over stocks on Oct. 1, the beginning of the corn marketing year, totaled 1.634 billion bushels, about 40 million bushels greater than expectations. But the level was nearly 600 million bushels below a year earlier.

Sorghum carry-over stocks of 109 million bushels were 50 million bushels higher than a previous forecast.

Total feed grain supplies were a little higher than expected. At 280 million tons, they were up 1 percent from a previous forecast and 12 percent greater than last season.

Underground radicals charged

NYACK, N.Y. (UPI) — Underground radical Kathy Boudin and three other suspects appeared in court Friday on charges of killing three men in a bloody $1.6 million holdup.

FBI agents and police Friday also pressed a search for up to six more terrorists.

Police officers armed with rifles and shotguns manned the rooftops of buildings surrounding the courthouse and nearby jail to guard against any possible attempt to free the suspects.

Nyack Village Justice Robert Lewis ordered the four, who are charged with murder and robbery, held without bail for action by the Rockland County grand jury. He denied a defense motion to dismiss the charges against Miss Boudin.

Miss Boudin, who had been on the run for 11 years, was arrested last Tuesday along with two other members of the Weather Underground — Judith Clark, 41, of Manhattan and David J.A. Gilbert, 37, of Cambridge, Mass.

A fourth suspect, Samuel Brown, 41, has a 23-year record of arrests and convictions for larceny, weapons possession and other offenses but no known prior connection to radical groups.

The four were captured in a shootout with police at a roadblock in Nyack following the robbery of $1.6 million in cash from a Brink's truck at a shopping mall. Two policemen and a security guard were killed in the robbery and subsequent shootout.

Authorities said the money was to be used to fund the group's terrorist activities. The money was found in the two vehicles.

Miss Boudin, 38, Clark and Gilbert had their eyes blackened. It was not clear if they had smudged their eyes with dirt or if they had been hit. Brown wore a neckbrace and slumped in his chair.

Brown's lawyer, Susan Tipograph, complained loudly that her client had been beaten repeatedly in jail. Authorities denied her allegations.

thor Keenan testified he saw Brown shoot Police Sgt. Edward O'Grady during the shootout in which O'Grady and Officer Brian Lennon.

New York City police, meanwhile, arrested one man and shot and killed another after an auto chase in Queens. Police believed the two may be among several suspects sought in the Brink's robbery.

The latest suspect was arrested and his partner killed in a bid to kill at the end of the chase near Shea Stadium. Police said the car's license plate was similar to that of a car sought in the Brink's robbery.

Police identified the captured man as Nat Burns, 36, who was among a group of Black Panthers indicted in New York City in 1968 for a series of bombings. He avoided prosecution by escaping.

The dead man was identified as Sam Smith, 37, also known as Major Sandilata, whose criminal record dated back to 1961 and included arrests for robbery, attempted murder and drugs, said police.

Reagan abolishes air bag rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration Friday abolished a regulation to require air bags or automatic seat belts in all cars by 1984.

Officials said the industry planned to manufacture self-declenching belts that could be too easily disconnected.

However, Raymond Peck, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, said at a news conference the principle of automatic crash protection is not dead. The air bag, along with other kinds of technology, may well be the way to go, he said.

Asked by Ralph Nader, a long-time proponent of air bags, if he would buy a car equipped with an air bag and urge manufacturers to offer such technology to car buyers, Peck said yes.

Peck said air bags are a technology waiting on the sidelines ready to go. But because the Carter administration scrapped an air bag demonstration project drawn up during the Ford administration, the industry does not have enough experience with the device, he said.

When Transportation Secretary Brock Adams drew up the present regulation in 1977, Peck said, it was thought most of the industry would comply with the rules through air bags that inflate in the passenger compartment when a crash occurs.

But he said the industry in the last two years has swung almost entirely behind automatic seat belts that close over the occupant when the door is shut.

Peck said only 11 percent of American drivers currently use manual seat belts, a figure that has declined steadily over the past few years. He said the automatic belt plays too heavily on drivers' entrapment fears and probably would be disconnected.

"Our latest survey evidence shows that there is a clear possibility that the automatic aspect of the new system could not only fail to increase usage but could itself create negative public reactions," he said.

"This could lead to widespread public resentment which in the past has led Congress to restrict the government in the adoption of safety technology addressed to the occupant."

Peck said he would engage in a "full-court press" on technology to attempt to find some way to provide drivers and their passengers with automatic crash protection.

Nader, in the course of his questions, called the decision "a tragic day for the American people."

Another senator opposes AWACS sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Previously uncommitted Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., announced Friday he will oppose the AWACS sale to Saudi Arabia.

Opponents predicted certain victory and urged President Reagan to withdraw the deal or face a major defeat.

But Reagan, attending the 22-nation economic summit in Cancun, Mexico, vowed to continue fighting for the $8.5 billion sale of five AWACS radar planes and an F-15 enhancement package to Saudi Arabia — the largest single foreign arms deal in U.S. history.

A United Press International count backed opponents' claims that they have the 51-vote majority they need to defeat the sale in a Senate vote next Wednesday.

Bumpers' decision, following similar announcements by Democrats Robert Byrd of West Virginia and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, prompted the opposition to claim victory.

"I do predict victory on the present package," Assistant Democratic leader Alan Cranston of California said. "If the Saudis agreed to joint command and crewing of the AWACS planes that would change some votes, but not necessarily the outcome."

Cranston and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., urged Reagan to withdraw the package or face certain defeat in his first major foreign policy fight with Congress. But Senate Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee said the sale "is still eminently winnable."

Baker said he would talk to Reagan about shelving the sale if rejection by Congress seemed certain, but he insisted that is not yet the case and the withdrawal option has not yet been discussed with the White House.

Reagan, apparently aware of Bumpers' decision, said in Cancun he would keep on fighting for the AWACS sale.

"We're going to keep on fighting," he said. "I look forward to getting back to Washington... to start lobbying again Monday morning."

Cranston said the opposition now has the 51-vote majority it needs to defeat the package. He said the votes of 34 Democrats and 17 Republicans are "irrevocable" because they co-sponsored a resolution of disapproval or have announced they will vote against the deal.

A Look At Livestock

Cattlemen enjoyed a good year in 1979, the first good one they enjoyed in about five years and, as it turned out, their last good year. What went wrong and how are they coping?

The sheep industry has faced a similar problem. In 1980 they thought they had turned the corner after a 20-year slide. The size of the sheep herd in the state increased for the first time in 20 years and lamb prices were high. The high prices lasted only a few months and what had seemed a rosey future is full of doubt again.

Our Look At Candidates Begins

Municipal elections will be held Nov. 3, and the Times-News will provide complete coverage of the candidates seeking office.

Beginning Sunday and continuing each day next week, we'll spotlight all of the contested races in the eight-county Magic Valley area. We'll tell you who the candidates are, describe their background and pinpoint the issues affecting their communities.

This Sunday, we'll begin our Election '81 coverage with an in-depth look at the six candidates running for Twin Falls City Council.

Politicians on TV: An Essay

Is television the making or breaking of politicians? Yes it is to both, and there is a resounding yes that it has changed, for better or worse, the whole American political process. This week in Family Weekly learn how the penetrating electronic eye of the camera explodes the privacy of the candidates so that the public can see more deeply into the people running than ever before. Watt says acid rain problem not his area of responsibility

TORONTO (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of the Interior James Watt, the target of drive by environmentalists to remove him from office, said Friday "acid rain is not my responsibility."

Watt also said he was surprised by some of the controversy surrounding his nine months in office and he wants to speak out to "set the record straight" on his policies.

Watt made his remarks in a speech to the Associated Press Managing Editors 1981 Convention and to reporters afterwards.

On the acid rain issue, Watt told reporters, "A study is being done on that problem. Acid rain is not my responsibility."

Studies have shown the emissions lead to acid rainfall in areas of Canada and the northeastern United States, which has damaged plant life and killed the fish populations of many lakes.

The U.S. Congress last year directed the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to lead a 10-year study on acid rain and indicated it would be three to five years before the EPA had enough sound scientific information to act.

"Last January I pledged to lock myself in my office until I had brought about the policy changes essential to President Reagan's mandate for the Interior Department. After that I determined that I would begin giving interviews, making speeches and carrying out other public obligations of a Secretary of the Interior," Watt said in his speech.

"I knew some of the changes I planned would be controversial, but I did not anticipate that the debate would center on Jim Watt, the person. I thought the debate would be on the issues," said the secretary.

Watt said his office staff told him "Jim, you've got to get out there and talk to newspaper editors. Set the record straight. To know you is to love you."

When reporters questioned Watt about acid rain after his speech, however, several burly bodyguards brushed them aside and escorted Watt to his hotel.

"I don't really have time to answer your questions," said Watt, who then cautioned one reporter she should move out of his way because, "I'd hate to see you get knocked down."

Carter undecided about Post suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter conferred with his attorney Friday but came to no decision on whether to accept an apology from The Washington Post or press a libel suit against the paper.

The controversy surrounds a gossip column report that Blair House was bugged while Ronald Reagan stayed there.

The Post said in a front-page story Friday that publisher Donald Graham has written a letter of apology to Carter and his wife Rosalynn and retracted the item which appeared in the Oct. 5 "Far" gossip column.

The former president talked by telephone with his Washington lawyer, Terrence Adelson, but did not decide whether to drop plans to sue the Post, an aide said.

The Post said Graham wrote to the Carters Thursday, two weeks after they demanded a retraction and apology and threatened a law suit. Neither the Post Executive Editor Benjamin Bradlee nor Adelson would say whether the letter was part of a negotiated agreement to avoid the suit.

"I wish to retract the item that appeared in The Washington Post concerning reports that Blair House was 'bugged' during President-elect Reagan's stay there. I also wish to apologize to both of you for its publication and regret any embarrassment that it caused you," Graham wrote.

"When we published the item we had a source whom we believed to be credible and reliable, and he identified his sources as two members of your family," the letter said.

"We now believe the story he told us to have been wrong and that there was no 'bugging' of Blair House during your administration. Nor do we now believe that members of your family said the Blair House was 'bugged,'" it said.

The Post did not identify its source or the Carter family members whom the source had quoted about the "bugging" of the official guest house across the street from the White House where the Reagans stayed in January.

Democrats form task force to challenge interest rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democrats Friday announced the formation of an emergency task force to challenge the administration on its high interest rate policy.

Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., appointed to chair the panel, said, "I don't think (the administration) understands what's happening to large parts of the economy."

Riegle pointed out that the auto industry, headquartered in his state, as well as the housing industry, small businessmen and farmers are in danger of being wiped out by chronic high interest rates. "It's a bonafide emergency," he said.

In a letter asking Riegle to lead the task force, Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said there is a consensus within the party for "Democrats to challenge the administration on its high interest rate policy."

Riegle told reporters Friday he and 12 other senators will begin meeting next week to form a Democratic alternative to the administration's tight money policy and to schedule public hearings around the country.

designed "to bring to light the damage being done."

He said, "The public needs to understand what effect the high interest rates are having on the economy. We need to develop a public mandate" to bring interest rates down.

Although the task force has not yet decided what legislative routes to pursue, Riegle said he would like to see the current Credit Control Act extended past its June 1982 deadline.

The act gives the president authority to direct the Federal Reserve Board to alter the nation's credit through credit controls and credit allocations to specific industries.

"The administration has shied away from acknowledging that they have the authority" to direct the Federal Reserve Board to change its monetary policy, Riegle said.

"The policy of the Federal Reserve has to change and it has to change soon to make more credit available," he said. "The president has the power, and in my opinion, he ought to use it."

Burger ruling delays order to reveal sensitive CIA info

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren Burger Friday blocked an unprecedented lower court decision that ordered the CIA to turn over "sensitive intelligence information" to the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

Burger granted without comment a request by the CIA to delay implementation of the federal appeals court decision. He postponed the order at least until the end of the month to give the Unification Church time to file a response.

The CIA told Burger Thursday that exemptions in the Freedom of Information Act allow it to withhold the documents, which concern "Korean-American relations during the late 1970s."

The controversial Moon, 61, claims more than 3 million followers in 130 countries. In an unrelated case, he pleaded innocent Thursday in federal court in New York to charges he filed false income tax returns for three years and failed to pay taxes on $162,000 in income.

The CIA, in urging Burger to delay the documents ruling, said: "This is the first case in which a court of appeals actually has ordered the disclosure of sensitive intelligence information that is classified under an executive order of the president in the interest of national security."

The agency claimed the material requested by Moon's group is exempt from disclosure on grounds "of foreign policy or national security," as well as the protection of "intelligence sources and methods."

The church made its original request for the information in 1978. When the agency refused to turn over many of the documents, the church filed suit.

A federal district judge ordered the release of parts of six documents. The judge noted the papers "involve congressional and Department of Justice inquiries into Korean-American relations during the late 1970s and refer only incidentally to the Unification Church or its founder Sun Myung Moon."

The CIA went to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, but that tribunal last Dec. 23 affirmed the district judge's decision.

Government IDs worst dump sites

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Friday identified 114 of the country's most noxious chemical dumps — the first step in a $1.6 billion, five-year clean-up program Congress ordered last year.

The dumps are a toxic brew of acids, solvents, heavy metals, poisons, dyes and petroleum products that threaten both human health and the environment, the agency said. Some dumps date to the turn of the century.

EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch said the list is based on dump sites the states want to clean up with the help of the industry and the government-funded "superfund" created last year.

Eleven states or territories did not submit candidates and EPA officials said it is possible there are other waste sites posing an equal or worse threat. They may surface before Dec. 11, the date by which the states must finish identifying sites. No Idaho sites were on the list.

The superfund law requires EPA to tackle the 400 worst sites in the country over a five-year period. The agency said it hopes to have the complete list by next spring.

Of the 400, officials said, 170 probably will first to contribute at least 10 percent of the long-term clean-up cost per site, unless the area is publicly owned, in which case the state pays half.

What's what

Are you acquainted with any overweight youngsters? If so, do they appear to be somewhat brighter than the thinner kids in the neighborhood? Probably, probably. Obese children tend to score about 10 points higher on IQ tests, according to the computer readouts. Researchers now are trying to figure how intelligence contributes to that extra weight.

That a man generally will try to settle his wife's debt before he pays his own has been reported. But experts aren't certain why. Most conclude simply that husbands dread nagging from home more than nagging from bill collectors.

"Tasteful" is a compliment, if you use it to describe vodka.

BODY CLOCKS

Q. Noon is when the human body tends to heighten the craving for physical romance, right?

A. No, sir, noon is when your body is most susceptible to alcohol. The romantic peak, supposedly, is 7 a.m.

Q. Where is it that the law says a woman's hair belongs to her husband?

A. A Michigan judge handed down a ruling to that effect, but nothing in the record at hand indicates it's a law anywhere in this country.

Q. Not all fish have seven fins, do they?

A. No, not all, just most.

Q. I know the only word in English with four sets of consecutive double letters is "subbookkeeper." But what's the only word with the same letter repeated consecutively three times? ...

A. "Wallace."

UNFAITHFUL WIVES

Our Love and War man notes a difference in opinion among authorities on what causes a married woman to be unfaithful. Psychiatrist Alfred Adler blamed revenge. French intellectual Simone de Beauvoir blamed disappointment. Writer Ruth Dickson blamed neglect, the need to be "visible again. What's your conclusion on this matter?

Three months' hard labor on a public project is the customary sentence in Finland after a conviction for drunken driving.

Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You need to make sure you get the right information from various sources since some persons are likely to be careless in stating facts correctly. Be alert at all times.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Good day to get much done that is personal in nature. Study your surroundings and make long-range plans for improvement.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take steps to improve your environment. You are able to have more rapport with loved one. Think logically and act wisely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Let your friends spell out clearly what they desire of you where recreations are concerned and go along with them if feasible.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure you follow through with promises you've made and keep out of trouble. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) This is a good day to engage in new outlets, provided you have studied them well. Make this a most productive day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how to handle regular duties more efficiently. Avoid expensive mistakes by being more alert. Put your talents to work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show more interest in civic affairs and gain more respect. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby with congeniality.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take extra time ironing out wrinkles in work at hand. Meet new persons who can help enrich your life in many ways.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ideal time to engage in favorite hobby with friends. Take health treatments and improve your appearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) There are new interests you can look into that could be beneficial in the future. Don't neglect regular chores.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to make your routines work more efficiently so that you need not worry so much. Use care in travel.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure you study every detail of a new project before going ahead with it. Show more devotion to loved one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very good at solving problems and should have as fine an education as possible in order to make the most of this talent. The pioneer spirit is definitely in this chart. Be sure to give good spiritual training.

Today is Saturday, Oct. 24, the 297th day of 1981 with 68 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

Those born on Oct. 24 are under the sign of Scorpio. American playwright Moss Hart was born Oct. 24, 1904.

On this date in history:

In 1861, the first telegram was transmitted across the United States from California Chief Justice Stephen Field to President Abraham Lincoln in Washington.

In 1939, women's hostility made of nylon went on sale for the first time.

In 1945, U.S. Secretary of State James Byrnes announced the United Nations charter had gone into effect following Soviet ratification.

In 1964, there was a social club in the Bronx, New York City, leaving 25 dead and 24 injured.

"A thought for the day: American novelist William Faulkner said: 'I believe that man will not merely endure; he will prevail.'"

CUT-OUTS
As if biographies on the Reagan's weren't enough, now there's "The First Family Paper-Doll & Cut-Out Book" by John and Dale Galt and First Lady, wearing stars-and-stripes underwear and silly gins. There are cut-out costumes for Ronald and Nancy on the campaign trail, all the way back to the 1964 campaign. "Oval Office" comes with cut-out visitors Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter, Alexander Haig and one-time Reagan co-star, Bozoma. Mrs. Reagan's ballgown is also included. The Galts told a gala fundraiser audience in New York, only Thursday night, what she thinks of these "Queen Nancy" postcards: "This is what's really fun. When the hair is grown, it makes you feel your hair." The $4.95 book, from Dell Publishing Co. also contains First Offspring Ron and Patti dolls with cut-outs for Greenwich Village and mid-back California.

"Betty couldn't be more opposite. She's as pretty as a picture. She's also soft and dimply, and I'm a Viking." On a more reflective note, the "Hello Dolly" star added: "I will go to my grave remembering the laughs I lost . . . I don't know how tragedians know where they stand with an audience. They can only tell if the white handkerchiefs come out and the people start blowing their noses."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Elvis Presley was a drug addict and was referring to medical records, false name on this patient's records? Cummins revealed under the ques- Neal asked.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Elvis Presley was a drug addict and was hospitalized under a false name for treatment of drug abuse in 1973, a jury was told Friday.

Internal medicine specialists gave doctors Presley's bouts with drugs after labeling as "outrageous and dangerous" the supply of narcotics Presley allegedly received from his physician during the last two years of his life.

For the last months of the rock 'n' roll king's life.

Dr. George Nichopoulos, Presley's doctor of 11 years, is on trial on 14 felony counts of overprescribing addictive drugs to Presley, singer Jerry Lee Lewis and other celebrities.

If convicted on all counts he could be sentenced to 140 years in prison, fined $280,000 and lose his medical license.

Prosecutor James Wilson asked Dr. Nichopoulos to characterize Presley as a "downer addict."

Nichopoulos practices of prescribing 19,000 uppers, downers, and painkillers for Presley over the 30-month period.

"They constituted an outrageous and dangerous overuse of drugs," Cummins said.

Referring to medical records, Cummins revealed under the questioning of prosecutors that Presley was hospitalized three different times for a total of 46 days between Oct. 15, 1973 and Sept. 25, 1975. "I don't know," the records showed, that Presley was treated at Baptist Hospital from Oct. 15 until Nov. 1, 1973, from Jan. 28 to Feb. 23, 1975, and from Aug. 21 to Sept. 25, 1975.

Asked if he knew of any medical conditions from consulting physicians during the first hospitalization...

"Can you tell me what they were doing?" Wilson asked.

"They were withdrawing him from the hospital," Cummins answered.

The prosecution said that although Nichopoulos was the attending physician he did not sign the discharge papers as required when Presley was released, but defense attorney James E. Egan said he did not see any examination that Nichopoulos did not sign them because Presley was hospitalized under an assumed name.

"You said Baptist Hospital required a signature," Egan asked.

"Yes," Cummins answered.

"Isn't it a fact that the hospital put AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Some dogs faint, and Auburn University researchers have been trying for years to figure out why.

"There are three or four types of fainting, and at least 20 to 30 different causes responsible for it," said Dr. Charles Branch, an associate professor of physiology and pharmacology.

Auburn does a lot of dog-related research because of a $4.2 million bequest to the university.

Eleanor Ritchey left 150 stray dogs to Auburn in her 1968 will. She specified that any money not used for caring for her pets be used for medical research, mainly on dogs.

"We've got six or seven dogs here that we're keeping in very good homes," said university spokesman Jerry Ray.

Ray was unable to say exactly how much the research has cost over the years, but he said the National Heart and Lung Institute and the Alabama affiliate of the American Heart Association have also contributed.

Why would somebody want to figure out why dogs faint?

"We're studying the problem for two reasons," said Branch. "One because we'd like to try to help the animals themselves. The other—that we hope by using these dogs as models we may someday be able to

"Much of the fainting you see is normal, and isn't serious," he says. "But some causes for fainting are dangerous, specifically irregularities of the heart. This is the kind of fainting we're primarily interested in."

After years of research,¹ Bran-

"We feel the problems are because of a part of the nervous system that controls the heart and respiration. I think the problem they have is therapeutically treatable."

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Lesson No. 1 double up as a red-tinged mist wall for bank robbers — don't shove the (from his midsection and formed

Police said a suspect walked into Union Trust Company branch Thursday and demanded money. The teller handed over the cash and the man showed a large wad of bills in the waistband of his trousers.

Police say the teller had enough time to insert a packet of "bat" money, triggered to explode and spray red dye and tear gas.

The device apparently worked, investigators said.

Witnesses told police the robber left the bank and approached a companion in a gray car driven by an accomplice.

Witnesses heard the suspect yell, the small cloud above his head.

The robber retrieved the money from his pants, threw the red-spot bills onto the pavement of a parking lot, jumped into the gray car and sped away, police said.

Police said all of the stolen money was recovered.

"This guy has on some bright-colored Fruit of the Looms," a police spokesman said. "We haven't caught him yet, but we will."

Police said hospital emergency rooms were alerted to be on lookout for someone with skin burn. At close range, tear gas can burn.

Police say the dye probably wore off in about a week.

GREENVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — A 16-year-old farm boy, his hand and foot mangled by a corn picker machine, drove himself 9 miles to hospital and then walked the rest of the way to the emergency room where the horn until a nurse arrived to help him.

Mac Scott's right hand and left foot were badly injured when he became entangled in the complex machinery of a corn picker on Thursday when he tried to clear grass from the clogged machine.

Scott, who was then 16, got back on the corn picker and drove it about a mile to his home, got into a pickup truck parked in the yard and drove eight miles to a Greenville hospital. He did not stop to alert his father, who was home at the time.

Scott, who lost the hand and foot, underwent three hours of emergency surgery at L.V. Stabler Memorial Hospital and will have more surgery Monday.

"It was really a miracle that he maintained his strength and stamina to get here," a hospital spokeswoman said.

Symptoms of toxic shock syndrome

Note: Toxic shock syndrome, as defined by the Centers for Disease Control, has many symptoms, some of which are also seen in other diseases. As a result, the CDC defines a victim to have most of the symptoms if a case is to be added to the toxic shock list. Other researchers believe the disease can exist in a patient even if fewer symptoms are present.

For toxic shock to be diagnosed after the illness has run its course, the CDC requires a victim to have the following four symptoms:

- Fever of at least 102 degrees Fahrenheit
- A sunburn-like rash on the body
- Dangerously low blood pressure (90 or less on the systolic, or 60 or less on the diastolic, or a drop in blood pressure reading)
- Peeling of the skin, particularly on the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet, technically known as desquamation, occurring one to two weeks after the onset of the disease

In addition, a victim must have at least three of the following organ system upsets:

- Vomiting, diarrhea, or both at the beginning of the illness
- Severe muscle pain or laboratory showing a level of a substance called creatine phosphokinase at least twice normal in muscle tissue
- Disturbances of mucous membranes in the vagina, mouth, and throat, or the eyes
- Malfunction of the kidneys according to laboratory tests
- Malfunction of the liver indicated by laboratory tests
- Blood anomalies
- Disturbances of the central nervous system including disorientation and alterations in consciousness

In addition, a number of diseases including meningitis, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, and measles must also be ruled out through proper tests.

Many of these symptoms do not appear until very late in the course of the illness. Not all of them appear in all victims, and only a few may appear in what are thought to be mild cases of toxic shock. But nearly all cases begin with vomiting, diarrhea, and fever—symptoms often mistaken for the flu. If a woman begins to have any of these symptoms during a menstrual period and is using a tampon, she should remove it and see her doctor immediately. According to CDC officials, if a woman has any of these symptoms regularly during her menstrual period and uses tampons, officials say she should discontinue their use and consult her physician.

Utah man diagnosed as having toxic shock

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A 34-year-old man hospitalized in Salt Lake City has been listed as the first male victim of toxic shock syndrome in Utah.

The bureau said 64 previously reported toxic shock syndrome cases have involved women between the ages of 12 and 47.

The Utah Bureau of Communicable Disease Control said the man, who was not identified, had undergone surgery to correct an obstruction in his nose. About 24 hours after the surgery, he showed signs of toxic shock and a culture disclosed an infection of Staphylococcus aureus, the germ associated with the syndrome.

The man was treated at the hospital for five days and released, the bureau said Thursday.

Mild earthquake jolts southern California

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A moderate earthquake shook a large section of Los Angeles Friday, jolting some coastal communities along the Pacific Ocean and gently swaying downtown skyscrapers.

There were no immediate reports of damage or injuries, but the Los Angeles Fire Department immediately took the precaution of moving its engines from city fire stations.

Seismologists at Caltech in Pasadena said preliminary readings indicated the 10:28 a.m. PDT quake lasted between 4.5 and 5.0 on the scale and was centered in the Pacific, 45 miles southwest of Santa Monica.

The tremor was felt most strongly in beach communities, but it also rattled windows in the San Fernando Valley, and the downtown business district.

Writer Joe Finnegan said the quake "rocked" his fourth floor office on Wilshire Boulevard.

"It was a real shot," he said. "The whole building shook."

But Randall Brelsford, whose office is on the 46th floor of the Security Pacific Building, said the quake was barely felt.

"Nothing rattled here," he said. "My chair bounced up and down very slightly. It was sort of a low rum earthquake."

A Sheriff's Department spokesman said the quake was barely felt in Santa Barbara, about 90 miles north of Los Angeles.

Montana high court rules 55 mph law unconstitutional

HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — The Montana Supreme Court Thursday declared the state's 55 mph speed limit unconstitutional.

However, the court agreed to delay the effective date of its ruling for two years to permit continued enforcement of the speed limit and to give the legislature time to enact a valid law.

The delayed effective date for the court ruling also would prevent loss of federal highway funds for the state.

The ruling came on a challenge from State Sen. Gary Lee, R-Port. Shaw, who successfully argued that a 1974 law unconstitutionally granted the attorney general legislative power to set the state speed limit in conformity with federal requirements.

"A more blatant handover of the sovereign power of this state to the federal jurisdiction is beyond our ken," the unanimous court decision said.

Ogden police: LSD stamps being sold to school kids

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — About 150 sheets of cartoon-character stamps with LSD-laced glue have been seized in the Ogden area, and police here believe more drug dealers are selling the stamps to elementary school students.

Jon Greiner, a detective in the narcotics division of the Ogden Police Department, said a man was arrested, and police took into evidence 150 sheets of stamps with a picture of the "Peanuts" cartoon strip character "Snoopy" depicted on them.

The stamps were tested at the Weber State College crime lab, and were found to contain a strong dosage of the hallucinogenic drug, Greiner said.

Officials at the Polk Elementary School reported a man of a different description tried to sell children stamps depicting Mickey Mouse for $3 apiece, he said.

The narcotics officer said the stamps are what are known in the drug vernacular as "bird blots."

LSD-saturated paper that is placed on the tongue for the drug to be absorbed. The cartoon-character stamps are a variation on the theme, Greiner said. LSD is a colorless, odorless, tasteless substance that mixes easily with glue.

"Most acid blotters don't have pictures on them at all," he said. "You put a small square on your tongue."

Greiner said police have been told two men — one from California and one from Colorado — travel through the state selling the stamps to dealers.

The man they arrested, Elmer James Maes, 28, Ogden, "does not fit the description of the guy who was selling at elementary schools," Greiner said. Since only Snoopy characters were seized, "we assume there are others out there," selling the stamps, the narcotics officer said.

Police agencies in Weber and Davis counties have received reports about the stamps, said Davis County Detective Robert Peters. The going street price for the stamps is $2.50 to $4, and similar stamps have been seized in Colorado and Pennsylvania.

Greiner said he sees the danger not so much that elementary school children will buy them, but that older brothers or sisters will leave them at home. The younger child might be attracted to the cartoon character, lick the stamp to put it on something and ingest the LSD.

And, he said, the stamps contain "fairly strong doses."

For now, Greiner said, he knows of no elementary school children who have inadvertently used the stamps. He says he wants to educate parents about what to look for. Stamps depicting the Mickey Mouse and Snoopy characters have been reported, as well as other characters, including a sunrise known as a phoenix.

Greiner said some Ogden parents complained about a month ago that men were trying to sell the stamps to their children. Officers made a concerted effort to buy the stamps, and finally succeeded. A warrant was obtained, and a man was arrested at his home.

FBI enters Salt Lake kidnapping case

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Federal Bureau of Investigation agents have been called in to help search for missing 4-year-old Danny Davis, and 50 FBI investigators have a "big fat zero" in trying to find the boy's abductor, Salt Lake County Sheriff's Lt. Dean Carr said Friday.

The sheriff's office is also circulating a composite drawing of a man that was seen in the store the night the boy disappeared.

Danny disappeared from Salt Lake grocery store Tuesday night. Over 150 deputies and search and rescue workers looked unsuccessfully for the boy for two days. The disappearance is now considered a kidnapping, Carr said.

Salt Lake County Sheriff Pete Hayward asked the FBI to join in the case, and Carr said the FBI was called in so that agency can tell us if there are any other similar type circumstances elsewhere in the country.

Carr said the man in the drawing was "seen in the store at the time and we're attempting to locate him for questioning." The man, he said, is not necessarily a suspect. Deputies want to find out what he may have seen. The man is 25 to 35 years of age, 5-foot-8 to 6 feet tall, 160 pounds, with collar-length brown hair. He was described as unkempt, with a five-day growth of full beard and mustache. He was wearing dark blue coveralls and a denim jacket.

He may have been driving a dark blue 1965-74 General Motors car with gray primer on the driver's side.

Deputies said they are also looking for two men, a woman and a car that may have been involved in the abduction.

While Carr said, "We've got a big fat zero so far," he added that the deputies are still "far from the end of the line" in the investigation, with many more leads to check. Deputies are working off of computer lists of known sex offenders, one investigator said.

The boy disappeared Tuesday while he was in the store with his grandfather, Clarence Davis, his guardian. The boy's parents were both present and involved in the search, so Hayward says he doesn't think the disappearance stems from a custody dispute.

Carr said the massive house-to-house search has been called off, but about 20 investigators are still questioning suspects and talking to people. "We've eliminated all we've talked to so far" as suspects, he said.

Evans' defendants all get 15 years

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two Burley men who attempted to kidnap Gov. John Evans' son, won't get additional prison time for their involvement in a Twin Falls extortion attempt.

Fifth District Court Judge Theron Ward, following the lead of his associate in Cassia County, Friday ordered 20-year-old Russell Piper and 22-year-old Bryan Spurgeon to serve consecutive 15-year prison sentences for the aborted extortion attempt in Twin Falls earlier this year.

Piper and Spurgeon pleaded guilty to charges of second-degree kidnapping, conspiracy to commit extortion and attempted extortion in connection with the incident.

Ward's decision is significant because he ordered the sentences be served concurrently with the 15-year prison sentences imposed Thursday on the two defendants by Fifth District Court Judge George Granata Jr. That means both defendants will be eligible for parole in five years.

Meanwhile at the Cassia County Courthouse, the third co-defendant involved in the attempted kidnapping of Burley banker John V. Evans Jr. was sentenced to serve up to 15 years in prison.

Appearing before Granata Friday in the Cassia County Courthouse, Charles Lopez, 21, of Burley, was given three concurrent 15-year prison sentences. In addition to first-degree kidnapping and first-degree burglary charges in connection with the May 11 kidnap attempt on Evans, Lopez also has pleaded guilty to a robbery charge in connection with the Jan. 27 holdup of the Albertson's Food Center in Burley.

Lopez also has pleaded guilty to a charge of accessory to attempted extortion in connection with the Twin Falls extortion incident. Ward will sentence him on that charge in Twin Falls on Monday at 10 a.m.

Also sentenced Friday was Lopez's 19-year-old brother, Jimmy. The younger Lopez has pleaded guilty to the Albertson's robbery and to the Feb. 15 holdup of the Stinker Station in Heyburn.

Granata sentenced the younger Lopez brother to two concurrent 10-year prison sentences. But he suspended execution of those sentences, ordering Lopez to spend 120 days at the North Idaho Correctional Institute at Cottonwood instead.

Provided he successfully completes the NICI program, Lopez could be placed on probation at the end of that four-month term.

Friday's proceedings before Ward were an anti-climax to the events which occurred in Granata's courtroom on Thursday.

Four days before they attempted to kidnap Evans, Charles Lopez, Piper and Spurgeon detained Jennifer Fuller, and Spurgeon's court-appointed public defender for Twin Falls, Mike Waltz, focused on the defendants' youth, their lack of a previous criminal history and their potential for rehabilitation.

Fuller noted Granata's decision was designed to give the defendants hope for an early parole.

"Let's face it. If the judge had wanted to, he could have wrapped it up for my client," Fuller said.

"Speaking on his own behalf, Piper expressed regret for his actions and requested leniency."

"I would like to explain that I'm very sorry for what I have done to these people, my family and friends. I've let the community down as well," Piper said.

Waltz said a psychological evaluation of Spurgeon concluded there was little likelihood that the defendant would return to a life of crime.

Wendell council OKs computer purchase

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News writer

WENDELL — On a divided vote, Wendell City Council decided Thursday to buy a $16,000 computer for the city.

During a 90-minute discussion before the vote, Mayor Otto Lemke spoke against the controversial purchase, saying, "It's my way of thinking we're not ready for it. We've been saving for a police car and new garbage truck. I don't see how we can spend this much money at this time."

Councilman Bob Thackeray said he could see some benefit to having a computer now, compared to three years ago when he and other council members rejected a similar proposal. However, he said, the council had not looked at enough computers yet to justify a purchase.

"The time to look was three years ago, and maybe by now, we could have something decided," Thackeray said. "For my money, we've just got to wait a while."

Mary Wofford, the city clerk, said the computer was needed because the present machine, which is not a computer, was obsolete and parts for it take a year to arrive. The new machine, she said, would give her more time to make profitable investments with city funds.

In favor of the purchase were councilmen Mike Wetzelstein and Grant Zollinger.

"The time is going to come when we are going to have to do something," Wetzelstein said. "If that machine breaks down, then we will have no choice."

Assisted by federal revenue-sharing money, the city can afford the computer now, Wetzelstein said, but it may not be able to afford it later.

Zollinger said Wendell should be more future-minded and take advantage of the revenue-sharing money while it is available. He said it may not be available after 1982.

Spending an estimated $5,000 to do the necessary updating and reprogramming of the present machine would not be a wise investment, he said. "We do need it now, and we do have the money now," he said.

Wofford and Wetzelstein claimed the computer will earn money for the city from other businesses that could use the machine, with their own programming, after city office hours. They said several Wendell businesses already were interested.

Wetzelstein also rebutted Thackeray by saying council was well informed about the aspects of the purchase, and by buying now, the city would be saving money.

Former Councilman Lloyd Little, who attended the meeting, was adamantly against the purchase, calling it "foolish spending." He asked if Wofford's salary would be decreased to make up for the $16,000 expenditure. He also suggested Wofford order her machine parts a year in advance.

Joe Hansen of Wendell also voiced opposition to the proposal, saying the city should save its money and wait for another business to join in the purchase.

Other citizens asking questions about the computer included Denton Adams and Marshall Howsden. Five others attended to listen.

Wetzelstein made a motion to accept IBM's bid; Zollinger seconded it; Thackeray voted "no." Councilman Paul Yocum was absent. Lemke attempted to veto the purchase with a "no" vote, but after a check of council procedures, it was determined he could only vote to break a tie.

When Lemke questioned the validity of the decision, without the full council being present, Zollinger offered to call Yocum for his vote over the telephone.

"No. I know what his deal is," Lemke said. "He'd vote for it."

'Crash' course

Twin Falls firefighters held a drill Friday near the airport to practice the proper techniques to use in the eventuality of a plane crash. The Federal Aviation Administration requires the drills, which simulate the inferno-like conditions of a crash. Without proper action, survival time in a burning wreckage is measured in seconds. In addition to the drills, the firefighters also receive classroom instruction about airplane crashes.

Ketchum man dies in wreck

KETCHUM — A motorcycle accident early Friday left one Ketchum man dead and another in a Salt Lake City intensive-care unit.

According to Ketchum police, Ky Ericson, 30, of Warm Springs Road, a passenger on the motorcycle, was pronounced dead at the scene after James Gallagher, 23, of Smokey Lane Condominiums on Williams Street, failed to negotiate a curve on Warm Springs Road just past the Warm Springs and Bridge at 12:30 a.m. Eastbound, the motorcycle crossed over the other lane and went off the road.

Gallagher was taken to Meritz Community Hospital in Sun Valley, then transferred to the intensive-care unit at University Hospital in Salt Lake City. He was reported in serious but stable condition Friday afternoon. Ketchum authorities declined to comment on the cause of the accident, saying only that charges are pending and the investigation is continuing.

Anti-ERA rally walks against 'Last Walk for the ERA'

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A rally for the Equal Rights Amendment, set for Halloween in the Twin Falls city park, may have some unexpected company.

A person opposing the ERA has announced plans for an anti-ERA rally on the same day in the same place.

Sherrell Olsen of Bula says she is trying to organize the rally to demonstrate local opposition to the proposed constitutional amendment.

The Twin Falls Chapter of the National Organization for Women organized the Oct. 31 "Last Walk for the ERA" to raise funds and publicize arguments for the amendment.

NOW officials say the pro-ERA rally will feature participants dressed as famous women leaders to reflect the historical struggle for equal rights. Participants will walk through downtown Twin Falls, collecting donations for the miles covered.

Olsen told The Times-News the anti-ERA rally is "an opportunity for those who are against the ERA to stand up and publicly say so."

"We are fed up with the excessive publicity ERA is still receiving. This country does not want the ERA, but proponents continue to raise its haunting, ghostly image through the media every few days," she says.

Olsen says that although she thinks the ERA will not be ratified by the necessary three states before June 30, ERA supporters continue to press the issue. She says she wants to show them "the opposition is still alive and kicking."

Olsen says she is organizing the rally alone: "There is not an organization in the Magic Valley to do this, so I'm taking it on myself."

The anti-ERA rally is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. in the city park, at the corner of Fourth Avenue East and Shoshone Street. The ERA rally will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the band shell in the park.

Olsen says a sound system will be provided, and she will speak. She says participants also may decide to walk through the downtown area, but they will make no effort to disrupt the ERA rally.

Julie Blank, a NOW member, says that although it was not unusual that controversial issues bring adverse reactions, she is "disappointed they wanted to stage it at the same time and place."

"I'm not opposed to anyone having an opposing viewpoint," she says. But "it seems as if this has to be a show of two factions against each other, and that's not what we (NOW) are about."

Olsen says she opposes the ERA because she feels it would take away rights from women and "would give to the federal government 70 percent more control over our lives."

For example, she contends the ERA would eliminate gender terms from laws, meaning husbands would not be required to support their wives and children, and Social Security benefits would be denied to non-working women.

Buhl man arraigned for sexual molestation

TWIN FALLS — A Buhl man remained in the Twin Falls County Jail on Friday after he was arrested on a charge that he sexually molested a 12-year-old girl.

Robin Michael O'Neal, 25, was arraigned Friday in Fifth District Magistrate Court for lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor under the age of 16.

Bond was set at $25,000.

According to charges filed by Buhl police, O'Neal allegedly performed sexual acts upon the girl Thursday.

Hunters warned not to trespass

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff James Munn is urging hunters to seek permission from property owners before entering their land.

Munn's request coincides with the opening of pheasant season.

Although most hunters, as a common courtesy, check with landowners before entering private property, some don't and that causes problems for property owners, as well as law-enforcement officers, Munn said.

"People most generally are cooperative, but there have been some problems in the past," Munn said.

ERA

She says she uses the 70-percent figure to refer to those laws now under the jurisdiction of the state that, she says, would be under federal jurisdiction if the ERA passes.

Blank says the ERA rally is being held to dispel false notions about the amendment's negative impact. NOW contends that ERA is needed to eliminate inequalities in the status of men and women in American law. Supporters say the ERA will help women acquire equal pay for equal work. Feminist Betty Friedman contends "the ERA is essential for the survival of families" because of its implications for the growing number of single-parent families.

Olsen, however, considers the ERA a dangerous threat to families because "it puts pressure on more women to work outside the home, leaving their children with other people and in a more vulnerable situation."

"When women work outside the home, 'it take jobs away from men who are the breadwinners; it contributes to inflation and unemployment problems," she says.

Olsen does believe women should have a choice whether to work in or outside of the home, but unlike ERA supporters, she feels ERA limits the choices.

She and her husband have nine children and manage Miracle Hot Springs in Buhl. She has been involved with the Informed Voters League, and she attended the International Women's Year convention as a Montana delegate.

She asserts she does not oppose equal rights for women and "has worked as a legal investigator. I feel I have a little bit of understanding of working women," she says.

But it is "carrying it too far to amend the constitution and to do it with vague terms that no one knows what the result will be."

Sentencings

The defendants also found an ally in Harry DeHann, the Twin Falls County prosecutor, who recommended that the sentences be served concurrently with those imposed in Burley.

Speaking to Piper, Ward agreed imposing additional prison time would probably prove unproductive.

"I see nothing to be gained by doing that, I think Judge Granata has set a tolerable rate, let's call it six, Mr. Piper," Ward said, pointing out the possibility of parole through the Department of Corrections. "I'm not saying that will happen. It can happen. That board has a lot of authority."

Ward told Spurgeon that a conditional sentence investigation report expressed some concerns over the defendant's potential vulnerability to sexual assault in prison.

"You're going to have to be very careful of your conduct," Ward warned.

At the Cassia County Courthouse, Doug Whipple, deputy Cassia County prosecutor, presented a picture of Charles Lopez, a 35-year-old U.S. Army Airborne Ranger veteran who had had difficulty adapting to civilian life after his discharge in November 1980.

At that time, Lopez was vulnerable to the criminal influences of Piper and Spurgeon, Whipple contended.

But Al Barrus, the Cassia County prosecutor, called on Granata to impose a harsher sentence on Lopez than he imposed on the two other defendants. Barrus justified his request in light of Lopez's status as a reserve Burley police officer.

"We're asking to give him additional time because of the breach of that public trust; because of the special trust he took on," Barrus said.

Barrus did not propose a specific prison sentence, however.

But Whipple argued the younger Lopez brother was as much a victim as he was a perpetrator of crime. The lawyer charged Lopez as being extremely immature and overly open to peer pressure.

Whipple said the younger man had begun to turn his life around in the months before his arrest. Lopez, who rented a house with Spurgeon, moved out and discontinued his involvement in the string of crimes after the second robbery, Whipple said.

Since his arrest earlier this summer, Jimmy Lopez has been free on a $7,500 bond and has been pursuing a high school equivalency diploma, Whipple said.

Idaho

agencies don't buy

Prison work goes begging

BOISE (UPI) — Many state agencies have ignored orders to buy more products from the Idaho State Penitentiary, members of a prison-watchdog panel said Friday.

The result has been to hamper efforts to reduce idleness among inmates.

The co-chairman of the Governor's Prison Review Committee, Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, criticized state agencies for not assisting in the effort to help lessen discontent and prevent riots by keeping inmates busy.

"The manpower is there — the orders aren't," Mitchell said during the committee's final meeting before submitting to Gov. John Evans an updated report of prison operations.

The committee's first recommendations to boost efficiency and safety at the prison were made to Evans last year. The governor had created the panel in the wake of the July 1980 penitentiary riot.

Terry McCullough, chief committee assistant, said this week a "Phase II" report would be sent to Evans within three months.

Correctional Industries is not recognized by state agencies as a source of supplies," Mitchell said. "This disturbs me. We haven't been able to get these state agencies on the ball."

Prisoners produce farm products, furniture and other items that can be used by state agencies. Correctional Industries Administrator Jerry Birch said.

The committee recommended last year that agencies be pressed to do more business with the prison rather than make all purchases from private companies — usually at higher prices. "I think we need a little stronger encouragement from the governor's office to pressure these agencies," Mitchell said.

Pat Costello, Evans' chief legal aide, told Mitchell the governor's staff has been planning to circulate a memorandum to state-agency directors with orders to pay more attention to products offered by the prison, south of Boise.

"As soon as that letter goes out, the better," Mitchell responded.

"Idleness is still a problem out there, just like it always has been," said Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, co-chairman of the committee.

Birch said 95-100 members of the prison population, which has pushed 900 at times, work regularly in Correctional Industries. Before the riot —

Craig blasts $5 benefits to convicts

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, says the Social Security Administration has not complied with a law that prohibits prison inmates from receiving Social Security disability benefits.

Craig said as a result he is sponsoring a bill that would "end the current abuse of the federal Social Security law."

Craig did not blame the Social Security Administration for the problem, saying the reason was that laws passed by Congress overlapped.

To enforce the Social Security Act, the Social Security Administration must locate the illegal recipients by notifying its list of recipients against a justice department list of federal inmates, he said. However, the Justice Department has not released that list because of restrictions under the Privacy Act, Craig said.

Craig's bill would exempt from the Privacy Act those agencies that provide the Social Security Administration with information necessary for the enforcement of the inmate provision.

The first-term representative said the government could have saved $16 million this year by complying with the Social Security law.

"If we stop sending Social Security checks to the dead, the criminal and others who don't belong on the system, we can assure the longevity is going to have," Craig said.

La Rocco: Craig can't cite Demos for current ills

BOISE (UPI) — Democratic congressional candidate Larry La Rocco says Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, should quit blaming out-of-power Democrats for the nation's current economic ills.

La Rocco, who is challenging Craig for Idaho's 1st District congressional seat, said "High interest rates are hurting our economy in Idaho, and Congressman Craig is trying to divert attention away from the plan he supports which brought us these problems," La Rocco said.

"It's high time the people who conceived the high interest rate policy claim parenthood for their bundle of joy."

during which much of the prison was destroyed — about 130 inmates were working, he said.

The prison would be able to handle as much business as it could get from state agencies, Birch said, and many more inmates could be put to work.

Gary Felt of the state Financial Management Division said the governor's budget staff was listing prison rates for furniture in fiscal 1983 budget requests of state agencies.

He estimated at least $15,000-$20,000 could be saved if agencies bought more furniture from the prison. Many agencies have paid $950 for a desk-and-chair set, while the prison's top price is $500, Felt said.

However, he said layoffs and program reductions in state government this year had caused a furniture surplus — and agencies still might not turn to the prison for furniture this year.

Also Friday, the committee was told by prison officials that medicine-related incidents and riots might be prevented more often if the Legislature appropriates funding for a special "shakedown" squad.

The panel also considered recommendations by the Ada County coroner's office on ways to improve management of the prison hospital. The prison came under fire when it was determined an inmate may have died in July because he was not given medication for epilepsy.

Double murder case hearing set

MOUNTAIN HOME (UPI) — An airman from Mountain Home Air Force Base must appear for a preliminary hearing Nov. 2 on second-degree murder charges filed in the shotgun slayings of two men.

Fourth District Magistrate John Selman, during arraignment proceedings Thursday, set the preliminary hearing date and appointed a public defender for 20-year-old Mark Vittone.

Vittone was being held in the Elmore County Jail Thursday on a $100,000 bond.

He is charged in the deaths of Timothy Cockrum, 27, of Mountain Home, and Robert Taylor, 37, of Boise. Elmore County sheriff's deputies found the bodies Wednesday in a car about two miles outside of Mountain Home after receiving a tip from a caller.

Sheriff Robert Mendolia refused Thursday to release information regarding the investigation.

Sentencing set for couple who led area robbery spree

BOISE (UPI) — Two people who allegedly masterminded a string of robberies in Idaho last year will be sentenced Nov. 2 in Boise, 4th District Court officials said.

Wayne and Geraldine Senseng were convicted in June of conspiracy to commit robbery and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Wayne Senseng also was convicted on charges of aiding and abetting a robbery and aiding and abetting a burglary.

The charges were filed after two Salt Lake City youths said they accompanied the Sensengs on an 18-day automobile trip in May and June 1980. During the trip, the youths robbed stores in Pocatello, Twin Falls and Boise. The youths each served an eight-month sentence at the state Youth Services Center, St. Anthony.

The Sensengs, who listed addresses in several states when they were arrested, have been in the Ada County Jail since June 1980.

Murderer will be sentenced

BOISE (UPI) — A 61-year-old Portland, Ore., man is scheduled to go before a Boise judge Nov. 19 to be sentenced in the 1979 gunshot slaying of a Garden City woman.

Victor-Donald Wilde, before pleading guilty to the murder charge, testified in 4th District Court that he killed Anna Mae Anderson, 45, in September 1979 after trying to dissuade her from falsely reporting that he raped her.

Nuke waste disposal funded

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — Federal officials at Idaho Falls have taken the first formal step in a project to eliminate the injection of radioactive waste water into the ground beneath the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

In response to protests by the state, U.S. Energy Department officials at Idaho Falls have asked their superiors in Washington, D.C., to ask President Reagan and Congress to allocate nearly $900,000 to begin designing a new waste disposal system.

Phil Hamric, director of nuclear fuel processing and waste management at INEL, said Friday the project eventually would cost $5 million-$15 million. Even if all funds are allocated on schedule, the system will not be operational until 1985, he said.

Currently, wastewater from INEL's chemical processing plant is injected into the ground under the site west of Idaho Falls, and radioactive materials for three decades have been seeping into southern Idaho's massive Snake River Aquifer.

A state task force in 1979 urged the INEL to correct the problem because the injection of tritium — a highly radioactive substance — violates state water quality standards. Hamric said the practice does not violate U.S. Environmental Protection Agency rules.

Under the new system, radioactive substances would be boiled away from wastewater and steam would be emitted into the air through a stack, Hamric said.

Power pact OK'd

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — The Idaho Falls City Council has approved an energy conservation program for the eastern Idaho community and provisions of an agreement to sell power from the municipality's generating facilities.

Council members approved Thursday a $250,000 contract with the Bonneville Power Administration for an energy conservation program. Under the plan, the city would install free water-heater wraps in 6,000 Idaho Falls homes — and receive $2 from the BPA for each wrap installed, inspected and approved.

The city also would receive 8 cents for each shower-flow restrictor delivered in its service area.

The council also approved a letter outlining a plan under which the city would purchase the output of three city-owned bulb-turbine generators scheduled to go on line in mid-1982.

The power sale would amount to roughly 175 million kilowatt hours of electricity each year and net the city about $3.7 million in annual revenues.

Officials said they expected to have the contract ready for signing before the first of the year.

Noranda rejects mine deal

KELLOGG (UPI) — Noranda Mines Ltd. has rejected any plans for buying the financially troubled Bunker Hill Co. lead, zinc and silver operations in North Idaho, a company official confirmed Friday.

"We did go out and take a look, but we concluded that we weren't any smarter than the people that were running" Bunker Hill, Alfred Powis, president and chairman of the board of Noranda, said in a telephone interview from his Toronto, Canada office.

"We decided we couldn't make a go of it," Powis said. "That is that... We have no further interest."

Bunker Hill President Jack Kendrick, meanwhile, also said the talks with Noranda apparently "will not develop any further."

Bunker Hill and its parent company — Galt Resources and Chemical Corp. of Houston — in August announced plans to close the North Idaho facilities by mid-November. About 2,100 employees will lose their jobs in the shutdown.

Company and state officials and the Silver Valley Economic Task Force have been attempting to locate a buyer for the mining and refining operations since the closure was announced.

The task force and local unions also are working on a proposal under which employees would participate in a stock-option plan in order to buy a part of the company. An economic report concerning that plan, however, said another company was needed to make the proposal work.

Tigers overcome selves, Buhl to make state

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

JEROME — Considering they had to overcome two opponents — themselves and Buhl High School — the Jerome Tigers' 27-20 victory Friday night was quite an accomplishment.

Jerome, which advances to this week's state A-2 playoffs, appeared bent on self-destruction during most of the evening. The Tigers lost five fumbles, two leading to Buhl touchdowns, and yielded the Indians' other TD on a bad snap from center.

But Zane Ostler righted the Tigers practically by himself, scoring two late touchdowns in less than a minute and a half on a four-yard run and a 45-yard interception return to wipe out a six-point Buhl advantage.

"We shut them off, but we kept giving up the big play," Buhl Coach Gregg Smith said.

"They played well enough to win, and so did we," said Jerome Coach Jon Jund, whose team has a chance to improve on its 4-4 overall record. "It was just a matter of getting the breaks here and there. We were thankful to win it."

The Tigers won it by displaying the resilience of a trampoline. After grabbing a 7-0 lead, Buhl stormed back for two second-quarter TDs to take a 14-7 lead shortly before halftime.

After the Indians' second score, however, Jerome needed just two plays to forge another tie just 22 seconds before intermission.

reviewing his subsequent heroics, Ostler broke for a 45-yard gain, bringing Jerome to Buhl's 20. From there quarterback Bob Stone fired a pass to Eric Shrader for the TD, and Rusty Palmer kicked the conversion to re-tie the score.

"That right there fitted us over the hill," Jund said.

Before surmounting the hill, though, Jerome dug itself a deep hole. Three promising third-quarter drives — two bringing the Tigers inside Buhl's 20-yard line — ended in lost fumbles.

Stone, who had missed two games with torn leg ligament lining, showed the effects of his three-week layoff by committing two of the miscues. "His timing was off," Jund explained.

But Ostler's timing was never better.

Buhl, which finished at 3-6 overall, took a 20-14 lead with 5:36 left, clinching an 81-yard, 14-play drive on quarterback Mark Lively's one-yard run.

The rest of the game belonged to Ostler. The 5-foot-8, 173-pound senior began his string of heroics by returning the ensuing kickoff 34 yards to Buhl's 46. Stone's 22-yard strike to tight end Kevin Hulsey advanced the Tigers to the 24, and six plays later Ostler drove in from four yards out with 2:21 to go, tying the score at 20. Palmer kicked his third extra point in as many tries, giving Jerome a 21-20 edge.

Suddenly thrust into desperation, Lively missed with his first pass, but he and John McElyett each ran for five yards to pick up a first down.

On the next play the Tigers' rush forced Lively to scramble to his right. Heading for the sideline, Lively tried to throw across the grain to a teammate, but the enterprising Ostler intercepted the zing-less pass at Buhl's 45 and ran unimpeded into the end zone with 56 seconds left, gleefully high-stepping the last five yards.

Bonneville stops late Bruin drive for 20-12 victory

IDAHO FALLS — Tom Gallagher's end zone interception in the closing seconds nailed down Bonneville's 20-12 decision over the Twin Falls Bruins Friday night.

Gallagher's effort turned back Twin Falls' last-minute bid to pull out the victory. But it was an uphill fight for the Bruins as they had to move 82 yards after a John Allison interception with 1:24 left in the contest.

The victory put Bonneville in a position to clinch the Gem State Conference title by beating Skyline next week.

The big difference in the game was the toe of Rich Nebeker who booted 36 and 31-yard field goals in the first and second quarters.

Twin Falls never led in the game, and, with a sporadic offensive movement that was complicated by nearly 100 yards in penalties, the Bruins simply hung in close enough to generate some hope in the waning seconds.

The surprise was they had the chance since Bonneville had just moved to a first down at the Bruin 14. For some reason the Bees opted for a pass and Allison was there to pick it off at the five and run it out near midfield. But Twin Falls was hit by a clip and had to start from its 18 instead.

A couple of passes to Galley and Brent Standing started it and the big gainer came when Galley caught a pass, fumbled when hit by Brett Semple was there to pick up the ball and run it to Bonneville's 43. It was on the next play that Gallagher made the interception in the end zone and returned it to the 14.

Twin Falls had an early chance when Lance Sellers recovered a fumble at the Bee 47 but the Bruins couldn't get a first down in the opening quarter.

After putting to the 18, Twin Falls was rocked on a 22-yard pass to Larry Webeck and Bonneville went from there to a first down at the 21. But Twin Falls held and Nebeker drilled his first field goal.

On its next possession, Bonneville moved out of reach when Kelly Kiesel and Troy Tawzer hooked up on a 54-yard bomb. Nebeker converted.

Twin Falls bounced right back with a good drive, passes of 17 and 22 yards to Semple and a 14-yard run by Scott Scherer being the big gainers. Rice scored from the six but Bonneville partially blocked the point-after kick.

The Bruins then gave three points away when they punted the ball into one of their own blockers. That gave the Bees the ball on the Bruin 21 and four plays later Nebeker added his second field goal.

Late in the third quarter a Kiesel to Rick Branson pass ended Bonneville's score. But within two plays after the kickoff, Rice had passes the Bruins back to the Bee 26. After grinding down to the two, Twin Falls sent Scherer in for the touchdown. The two-point conversion pass failed.

Valenzuela, LA tip Yankees

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Fireplug Ron Cey provided first-inning spark with a three-run homer and extinguished an eighth-inning threat with a diving catch Friday night to lead rookie Fernando Valenzuela and the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees in the third game of the World Series.

The Yankees, who still lead the series 2-1, send right-hander Rick Rueschler to the mound today in the fourth game with the Dodgers countering with right-hander Bob Welch.

Cey staked the Dodgers to a 3-0 lead in the first inning when he drilled a Dave Righetti fastball into the left-center field bleachers after two were out. However, it was his diving catch of pinch hitter Bobby Murcer's foul pop bunt in the eighth inning that choked off a Yankee rally and saved the game for the Dodgers.

The Dodgers had taken a 5-4 lead in the fifth inning on an RBI double by Pedro Guerrero and Mike Scioscia's bases-loaded, double-play grounder, but the Yankees threatened in the eight when Aurelio Rodriguez and Larry Milbourne stroked back-to-back singles with nobody out.

Murcer then was sent up to pinch-hit for reliever Rudy May and, attempting to move the runners, lined a foul bunt down the third-base line. Cey dove for the ball and snared it for an out and then jumped to his feet and threw back to first to double up Milbourne. Valenzuela then got Willie Randolph to hit a bouncer to Cey, who fielded a tricky hop and tagged Rodriguez, who was coming to third.

Valenzuela, a life-saver for the Dodgers all season, did not pitch one of his classic games, but blanked the Yankees over the last six innings to get the victory. The 20-year-old Mexican left-hander had trouble with his control all game, walking a career-high seven batters, and was touched for nine hits, including a solo homer by Bob Watson in the second and a two-run blast by Rick Cerone in the third.

On more than one occasion, Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda contemplated removing Valenzuela but because of the rookie's poise under stress, he stayed with him and it paid off.

Valenzuela, who led the National League in strikeouts this season, struck out six and threw more than 140 pitches in struggling to the victory.

Fortunately for the Dodgers, the Yankees' rookie sensation, Righetti, had even less stuff than Valenzuela and lasted only until the third. The Dodgers tagged the 22-year-old southpaw for five hits before he was replaced by George Frazier in the third.

The Dodgers, who had managed only nine hits in the first two games of the Series, started out as if they were going to blow the Yankees off the field as they sent eight batters to the plate.

NY impressed with Fernando's poise

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The New York Yankees were impressed by the pitching ability of Fernando Valenzuela Friday night after the 20-year-old rookie pitched the Los Angeles Dodgers to their first World Series victory after two straight defeats.

But the Yankees were even more impressed by Valenzuela's ability to roll with the punches and come back for more.

Valenzuela went the distance, giving up nine hits in the Dodgers' 5-4 victory. He walked seven batters, the most in a game in his career, while striking out six.

After the Dodgers took a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Ron Cey's home run, the Yankees came back with two runs in the second on a leadoff homer by Bob Watson and an RBI single by Larry Milbourne. New York then took a 4-3 lead in the next inning on Rick Cerone's two-run homer.

"Valenzuela settled down and got stronger after the fifth inning," said Cerone. "I'm surprised he stayed so long, but he's their ace and they have a lot of confidence in him."

Cerone, who also had a double in four at-bats, said the home run came on one of Valenzuela's classic screwballs while the double came on a fastball.

"We got some hits off him and a lot of teams didn't even do that," said Cerone. "But Valenzuela is a good pitcher and he hung in there through the tough times. That's the sign of a real good pitcher."

Watson, who drilled his second homer of the Series over the 395-foot mark in center field, said he didn't expect Valenzuela to be around after the fourth inning.

"Valenzuela is a battler," said Watson. "We got the hits early and he could have given up but he didn't. He didn't have his great control but he went out there and sucked it up and did the job."

Right fielder Lou Piniella, who singled in five at-bats and scored one run, echoed his teammates in praising Valenzuela.

"He's a tough pitcher and he showed me a lot with his style," said Piniella. "He doesn't give you anything real good to hit, but we got the hits in the second and third inning and I figured that might be the end of him."

"But he got stronger as the game went on. In the last few innings, we hardly touched him."

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner blamed the loss on a number of things, including his team's mental mistakes, the condition of the Dodger Stadium infield and the poor showing of his highest paid player. He also singled out Aurelio Rodriguez, who was playing in place of the injured Graig Nettles.

"We lost today because of the damn mental errors," Steinbrenner said. "Rodriguez made a couple of them and I guess it's just because he hasn't played much. That lousy infield sure didn't help. You'd think they'd put in a half-decent infield in this park."

"And maybe the worst thing of all is that Dave Winfield isn't hitting at all. He's got two hits in the last two weeks and he's just not doing the job. He's had a real bad Series and he's the guy we depend on."

Ron Cey and Fernando Valenzuela congratulate each other

Valenzuela gives Lasorda a performance with 'heart'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tom Lasorda's Spanish is not exactly fluent but it comes from the heart — just the way Fernando Valenzuela pitched Friday night.

"I've never seen anyone with so much heart," Lasorda told Valenzuela after he had pitched the Los Angeles Dodgers to a tough 5-4 victory in Game 3 of the World Series.

It was not one of Valenzuela's better games. In fact, the rookie left-hander called it one of his worst. Valenzuela struggled throughout, retiring the side in order only twice while throwing a career-high 145 pitches. "The big problem of the first six innings was that I kept falling behind the hitters," said Valenzuela, who yielded nine hits and walked a career-high seven batters.

Despite his control problems Valenzuela allowed the Yankees to score in only the second and third innings.

"After the first six innings I finally got my rhythm and started pitching the way I'm capable of," Valenzuela said.

Bruins split but advance, Wood River falls

SANDPOINT — The Twin Falls Bruins gained the A-1 Wood River fell out of contention after the opening day of the Idaho Girls Volleyball Tournament Friday.

Twin Falls advanced to an 11:30 a.m. meeting today against the Meridian Warriors in the A-1 division. Meridian presents a particular problem, having 6-5 Theresa Spaulding who is particularly strong in blocking at the net defensively and spiking offensively.

Twin Falls lost to Nampa in the opening game of three-team pool competition. Nampa won the first game 15-6 with the Bruins rebounding to claim the second 15-5. But Twin Falls couldn't hold the edge and fell 15-8 in the decisive third game.

The Bruins rebounded against a known quantity in the Idaho Falls Tigers and won in straight sets to advance to today's final round. They defeated the Tigers 15-6, 15-8 to win with ease.

It wasn't easy for Wood River, however, as the Wolverines fell to St. Maries 15-12, 16-15, 15-10 in the first round and then ran into a buzz saw in Preston, which defeated them 15-4, 15-10.

"I felt we were pretty well matched up against St. Maries," said a dejected Coach Dave Neumann. "We ran into some trouble with our serving and gave away too many loose balls to beat them, though."

But he felt his Wolverines could play quite a while and still not be able to do a lot against Preston.

"Preston has a girl — I don't even know her name — that's absolutely incredible," he said enthusiastically. "She hits from everywhere and puts them down. I don't know if Preston is the big favorite to win it because I didn't get a chance to see all the teams. But this girl is awesome and any team that beats Preston will be a very good team."

Twin Falls' players were disappointed in their showing in the opener.

Junior Wendy Coonts said she couldn't explain why the thought of playing in state couldn't do it but "we just watched. We weren't jacked," she said.

"We mostly stood around against Nampa. I guess they were a good team but I don't know if they are that much better than us," she continued.

"But we got ourselves up for the second game against Idaho Falls. We were ready for them," she added.

While there wasn't a lot to cheer about in the first game, the spiking of Angela Brady in the opening match against Idaho Falls seemed to get the Bruins going. Coonts backed Brady with some solid spiking in the second game when Twin Falls was wrapping it up.

The results of the first day's matches and the teams that advanced to the finals today weren't available late Friday night.

However, the matchups will have the first place teams from each pool playing the other pool's runners-up, based on Friday's play.

Intra-district battle

Friday's A-4 State Volleyball Tournament became a heated battle between two Magic Valley teams early as Camas County, the Fourth District Champion, met Hagerman, which was runner-up in the district but won a playoff game to make state. Hagerman's Janine Hulme (15) blocks a spike by Camas' Barbara Hinkle (above) while Camas County Coach John Hurley encourages his team (left). The match was a nail-biter for the Hagerman bench (right) and in the end Hagerman won two games to one. The day turned out well for both teams as Camas dropped Clark Fork in evening action and both Hagerman and Camas advanced to today's final action.

All 3 Magic Valley teams stay in running

TWIN FALLS — All three Fourth District volleyball teams stayed alive in bids for a state championship during pool play Friday in the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

Gooding High, last year's runner-up, won both of its matches to claim its pool championship in the A-3 tournament while Hagerman and Camas County each split their two matches but advanced on the basis of points in the A-4 contest.

Other A-3 survivors of pool play include McCall-Donnelly, Malad and Troy. And Cambridge will join Hagerman and Camas County in the final four of the A-4 tournament.

A-3 tournament

Gooding was sparked by the play of Kelly Fossecoco and the serving of Diane Yore as it defeated Malad in two games to open the tourney.

The Senators, who have lost only to A-1 competition this season, had an early 2-2 tie with Malad when Yore took the serve and ripped off five consecutive points for a 7-2 lead. Malad never did recover and the Senators hit 100 percent of their serves on a 1-0-0.

The second game was a little different. The Senators had trouble at times with their serving and never let by more than four points in taking a 15-12 decision.

Malad's Lori May was strong at the net and Teresa Hubbard served well as Malad had leads of 3-1, 6-5 and 9-7 before the Senators regained control.

Gwen Reed, who had some excellent spikes, had back-to-back serving aces to tie the game at 9-9. Julie Clemons added four points a minute later and the Senators had a comfortable 13-9 cushion that Malad tried to whittle but failed.

Reed drilled her hardest spike of the match to gain a side out at 14-12 and Yore followed with the winning point on a front row serve that Malad couldn't dig up high enough to return.

Gooding faced the northern Idaho team of Kendrick in its second match and the Tigers, behind junior Lisa Vallem's net play and the serving of Beth Harris won the first game 15-12.

Kendrick trailed by a narrow margin through most of the game before taking the lead for good at 13-12. Gooding couldn't get the ball over in three hits to give Kendrick its 14th point and Vallem's dink was the winning point.

Jolene Toone's squad rebounded to win the next two games, sending Kendrick to its first defeat of the season.

Comme France's serving gave the Fourth District champions a quick 6-0 lead in the first game en route to a 15-3 win.

McCall-Donnelly won the Pool 1 championship by taking Butte County in two games and Frulland in two games. The Vandals have a tall lineup and several coaches expressed the opinion Gooding may meet the Vandals in the finals.

Malad made it into the final four by virtue of a 17-15, 15-13 win over Kendrick in a late match. Kendrick had a chance to win both games as it led in the late stages, but the Tigers had troubles at the net and were dispatched back to the panhandle after suffering their first and only two losses of the season.

Frulland, a see-saw winner over Butte County in the day's opener, will between spikers Kristen McFadden of Hagerman and Mickey McComman of Camas County.

Hagerman blitzed to a 6-0 lead in the first game but Camas slowly gained on the Pirates and several spikes by McComman in the final minutes gave John Hurley's squad the win.

Lorene Kuhn's serving put the Pirates up 10-5 in the second game. Camas closed to 10-9 before McFadden got the best of McComman to even the match with a 15-10 win.

The roles were reversed in the deciding game as Camas took an 11-5 margin before Bonnie Bright's serving pulled the Pirates within three at 11-8. Minutes later McComman missed a spike and McFadden followed with a kill and the Musers' lead was just 11-10.

McComman made it 12-10 with a strong serve before McFadden found a hole for one point and Kuhn dinked for another and a 12-12 tie.

After several side outs because of costly missed serves on both sides, the Camas defense to put the Pirates up 13-12.

Camas was called for a double hit on Kuhn's next serve to make it 14-12.

McFadden missed a spike to let the Musers within one at 14-13, but Hancey Braliford's bump fell in for a side out and she pinpointed her serve to the right and Camas couldn't make a play as Hagerman won 15-13.

face Gooding at 11:30 a.m. today.

A-4 tourney

Deciding which two teams advance out of the Clark Fork-Camas County-Hagerman pool came right down to the final game of the night, decided shortly after 10 p.m.

Camas County charged for a 15-7 win in the first game, but Clark Fork used its spiking for a 15-12 second game win. The Musers then rallied for a 15-9 victory.

The result was a 1-1 match score for all three teams since Hagerman beat Camas, Clark Fork beat Hagerman and Camas beat Clark Fork.

The criteria for breaking a three-way 1-1 deadlock is the number of games won. Each team had won three games, so the next deciding factor was points. On that basis, Camas County finished the day with seven more points scored than allowed so it won the pool title. Hagerman finished even in points scored and allowed to tie the runner-up spot. Clark Fork finished with seven more points allowed than scored, so it was eliminated.

For Fourth District fans the highlight of Friday's action was the Camas County-Hagerman match. It was a rematch of an earlier district playoff that the Musers won to claim the district title.

In Friday's marathon match the Pirates gained revenge with a 12-15, 15-10, 15-13 victory. The battle was between spikers Kristen McFadden of Hagerman and Mickey McComman of Camas County.

Hagerman blitzed to a 6-0 lead in the first game but Camas slowly gained on the Pirates and several spikes by McComman in the final minutes gave John Hurley's squad the win.

New York marathon shaping up as tight race

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the final days before Sunday's 12th New York City Marathon, the outlook for the race has suddenly changed from a showcase for Alberto Salazar's second straight victory to a close, competitive thriller with international flavor.

Salazar, the 23-year-old native of Cuba, won the prestigious marathon last year on his first try at the 26-mile, 38.5-yard distance in a startling 2 hours, 9 minutes, 41 seconds.

He is still a heavy favorite to repeat and possibly break the world record of 2:08:34, but the cast of challengers has grown stronger as the final touches are being put on the course which winds through New York's five boroughs.

Late entries into the field of over 16,000 include veteran Bill Rodgers, who has won the New York and Boston Marathons four times each and is the American record-holder at 2:09:27. Massimo Magnani of Italy, who won the Europa Cup Marathon last month in 2:13:29; and John McLaughlin of Ireland, the best of the powerful Duncraig Harriers running club.

Those are in addition to the earlier-entered Rodolfo Gomez of Mexico and John Graham of Scotland, who finished second and third, respectively, behind Salazar last year.

Salazar, however, remained as confident as he was last October, when he brashly predicted his triumph.

"I put 2:08 down in my entry form,"

Salazar said of his predicted time. "Running 1:40 faster than last year's time is not much faster. I can talk all I want about this time, but at some point in the race Sunday, I'll have to talk to myself and then run the race of my life."

Salazar, who has not run another marathon since his 1980 victory, said that all his summer road work was directed at New York, and he claimed to "have never had a bad race when I've done the training and have the base."

Cougars have chance to hike Pac-10 margin

By United Press International

Southern California takes time out from the Pacific-10 Conference race this week for its traditional match with Notre Dame, thereby giving Washington State, the league's best team this far this year, a chance to get a leg up on the Trojans in the Rose Bowl race.

Unbeaten and once tied Washington State goes to Tucson Saturday night for a key game against streaking Arizona. A victory over the Wildcats would give the Cougars a 3-0-1 Pac-10 record and send them on to Los Angeles next week for a showdown with USC.

The No. 4 Trojans are 5-1 in the league race. After WSU, they have remaining dates with California, Washington and UCLA, while the Cougars finish up against Oregon, Cal and Washington. Against 2-3 Notre Dame, they are only 3-1-2 point favorites.

Washington State, ranked 14th this week, is a 3-point underdog to an Arizona team that has rebounded after losses the first two weeks to win four in a row, including an upset of USC.

The Cougars, who played to a 17-17 tie with UCLA last week, are the only unbeaten team in the Pac-10. Arizona nipped Oregon last week, 18-14, and is 3-2 in the conference and 4-2 overall. Victory over WSU would leave the Wildcats into the middle of the race for the Pac-10 title while a loss would end their season.

WSU leads the league in scoring defense and is fourth in scoring offense, while Arizona is sixth in scoring defense and seventh in scoring offense. But the Wildcats have held their last five opponents to under 300 yards in total offense and 16 points or less.

Arizona's emergence as a passing team has been instrumental in the team's transformation. Quarterback Tom Tunnicliffe has completed 65 of 115 passes for 725 yards. Six different receivers have caught 10 or more of his passes.

WSU quarterback Ricky Turner doesn't throw the ball as much as Tunnicliffe, but he doesn't have to. All 16 Cougar touchdowns this year have been scored on the ground.

Cougar coach Jim Walden expects the Wildcats to come out throwing and not stop until the WSU defense proves it can handle that kind of an offense.

"They love to throw the ball," said Walden, "so we have to be ready for that kind of a game. They'll use the shotgun, too, which gives us something else to worry about."

People are talking about the Cougars' chances of landing a bowl berth, but Walden says that kind of talk is premature until his team wins its sixth game.

"I'm not ready to talk about bowls," he said. "Until we win that sixth game, it's all a dream."

"This game is one of the most important of the year for us," says Arizona coach Larry Smith, "and for obvious reasons. It is necessary for us to keep it going. We need to continue to improve. As for WSU, they play with confidence, they're hard-nosed and they believe in themselves and their coach. I have a world of respect for Jim Walden."

There are only two other league games on this week's schedule — Arizona State at Stanford and Cal at UCLA, with the Sun Devils, who are ineligible for a bowl berth because of an NCAA suspension, rated 3-1-2 points over the Cardinals and the Bruins picked by 15 over the Bears.

Like USC, Washington, Oregon and Oregon State play outside the conference. The No. 18 Huskies are at Texas Tech, the Ducks host the Air Force and the Beavers play at Oklahoma. Washington is favored by 9 while Oregon is picked by 17 and no odds are listed for Oregon State.

The PCAA features a key match, too, with San Jose State playing at Utah State. Both are 2-0 in the league race and the winner is almost assured of the title and the California Bowl berth that goes with it.

The Spartans are one of the top teams on the West Coast this year having won five in a row since an opening loss to Nevada-Las-Vegas. Among their victims have been Stanford and Cal of the Pac-10. The Aggies haven't been as consistent with a 3-3-1 mark.

Two other league games round out the PCAA schedule — Fresno State at Pacific and Long Beach State at Fullerton State.

SMU faces major hurdle in perfect season quest

By United Press International

Some significant happenings have taken place involving the Southern Methodist football program the past few years.

The Mustangs moved their headquarters from the Cotton Bowl to Texas Stadium, they recruited a particularly talented group of athletes and they wound up on probation which will cost them a post-season trip this year.

But through all of that, perhaps their most significant moment since the era of Don Walker and Kyle Rote will come along Saturday afternoon, one that could vault the Mustangs toward what seemed to be a very unlikely goal before the start of the year.

SMU, unbeaten in six games, host the dejected Texas Longhorns and a win in that one for the Mustangs would make them a legitimate threat to post their first perfect season since 1935 and only their second in history.

The game will take place in a stadium that as yet has not produced much of a collegiate atmosphere.

Texas Stadium, with its symmetrical lines and unique architecture, seems to promote relatively calm reflections rather than the noisy rantings of a wildly partial throng.

SMU coach Ron Meyer can only hope that this changes over the years.

"You look at the Astrodome," said Meyer, speaking of the spot where the Mustangs survived in a 38-22 decision over Houston last week. "I think that stadium gives the Cougars as much as a 10 or 13-point advantage."

"I'd like to think that some year Texas Stadium would provide the same kind of home-field advantage that you see in Fayetteville or in the Astrodome or at Kyle Field or in Lubbock."

"But I don't know if we can say that yet."

Despite Texas' loss to Arkansas a week ago and its drop in the ratings from first to eighth, the Longhorns (1-1 in SWC action) are still in good shape to make a run at the Cotton Bowl berth since SMU's probation renders the Mustangs ineligible for that trip.

Heafner and Holland maintain team lead

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (UPI) — Vance Heafner and Mike Holland, teamed in a 19-under-par 63 Friday to hold onto a two-stroke lead after the second round of the National Team Golf Championship despite a course-record 58 by Barry Jaekel and Gary McCord.

Jaekel and McCord had 14 birdies seven on each nine — and are now 20-under-par after two rounds.

"We did the all-time hand-and-egg job," said Jaekel. "We shot 58 because each of us made birdies on different holes. We didn't do anything spectacular. We might have made a couple of 20 footers, but that's it."

McCord paced the team with eight birdies and dropped a 20-footer on the 18th hole to steal the record from Jeff Hewes and Sammy Rachels, who shot 59 earlier in the day and were among six teams four shots behind the leaders at 126, 18-under-par.

Heafner and Holland held onto the lead by playing a steady, if unspectacular, round Friday. They teamed up for 10 birdies and after two days are on a tournament-record pace at 122, 22-under-par.

Heafner had seven of the team's 10 birdies, four of them on the back nine. He drew praise from his teammate.

"I've been riding so much. I feel like Gene Autry," Holland said. "Vance made seven birdies and I let some real good chances go by ... like at eight and nine."

But Heafner said it was his teammate's play that has allowed him to open up and go for broke in the best-ball tournament that offers a $65,000 first prize.

"The trade-off is that I've made a few birdies — but Mike has it there for me so I can run at it. It can go the other way, too."

Barry Harwell and Lynn Lott, who were tied for the lead Thursday, faltered to 1-56 Friday and are among the group of six teams at 18-under-par, four shots behind the leaders.

They started their round with three straight birdies but slowed in the middle holes. They still think they have a shot at first place, however.

"Tomorrow will be a big day," said Harwell. "Vance and Mike can keep the pace — unless they start real fast."

Three-man team cops special golf benefit

TWIN FALLS — The size of the team didn't have a lot to do with the outcome Friday in the Blue Lakes Country Club golf benefit for the American Cancer Society.

A total of 10 individuals participated in the one-day event, playing a four-person team best ball format. The club provided lunch.

One of the players didn't show up on the championship squad but it made little difference to Matt Smith, Hank Wills and Ross Brown who won the net award with a 19-under-par 52.

BYU wins Utah State meet

SMITHFIELD, Utah (UPI) — Robert Meyer, Keith Goyen and Kent Kluba led defending NCAA champion Brigham Young University to the team championship Friday at the annual Evj Thorpe Golf Tournament hosted by Utah State University at the Smithfield Golf and Country Club.

Meyer took the individual title, and Goyen and Kluba tied for second with Utah State's Roy Christensen and

A three-way deadlock developed at 53 with the Jerome of John and Justin Messersmith, and Jim and Jim Anest, Woody Reed and Lloyd Miller. The other playoff team was Bob Harvey, Alan Horner, Bob Cooper and Andy Anderson.

The gross prize went to the foursome of Dan Hamblin, Bob Wills, Stan Detweiler and Roy Crumbliss who carved out a sharp 12-under-par 59.

Henry White of Utah, BYU's team total of 1,064 was 23 strokes ahead of Weber State's second place total of 1,088. Both USU was third with 1,097 followed by Utah with 1,125, Idaho State with 1,166, Southern Utah State College 1,169 and Boise State with 1,192.

Meyer shot 71-70-68 for a 209 total, three strokes ahead of the pack in second.

Missouri's title hopes may end today

By United Press International

One week ago, Missouri was the highest-rated and the only unbeaten team in the Big Eight. The Tigers had everything going their way with a 5-0 record and a No. 8 national ranking.

But Missouri fell to Iowa State last Saturday, 34-13, and is suddenly on the verge of elimination from the Big Eight race. A loss Saturday — and it's extremely possible with torrid Nebraska playing Missouri — would leave the Tigers 1-2 in the league with Oklahoma remaining on the schedule.

Nebraska has replaced Missouri as the league's hottest team. The Cornhuskers had some early season problems with a 1-2 start. But those losses were to top-rated teams, a loss Saturday — and it's extremely possible with torrid Nebraska playing Missouri — would leave the Tigers 1-2 in the league with Oklahoma remaining on the schedule.

Nebraska's resurrection this season as a national power — the Cornhuskers have climbed back to the No. 11 spot in the UPI poll — can be traced to the insertion of sophomore Turner Gill at quarterback. He has started the last two games and the Cornhuskers have outscored their opponents 108-3 and rolled up 76 first downs and 1,404 total yards.

Big Eight

"When you can physically dominate a game running the football like Nebraska," said Kansas State Coach Jim Dickey, "and then throw play action passes, they're really going to be tough to beat. Turner Gill is throwing the ball exceptionally well for them."

Nebraska ranks fourth nationally in total offense with an average of 472 yards per game and first in rushing with an average of 355 yards per game. Backs Roger Craig and Mike Rozier have combined for 1,142 yards on the ground already this season with seven touchdowns.

Missouri will provide Nebraska its stiffest defensive challenge in the conference to date. The Tigers rank fifth in the nation in total defense with an average yield of 221 yards per game and sixth in rushing defense with an average yield of 91 yards.

Scramble for No. 1

Lions face once-beaten W. Va.

By United Press International

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Even if Joe Paterno didn't attract attention to the ratings, he would tell you his Penn State football team still isn't as good as it can be.

Paterno, a well-known critic of the rankings, has downplayed all talk of the unbeaten Nittany Lions being the No. 1 team in the nation this week, concentrating on preparation for Saturday's game against West Virginia at Beaver Stadium.

The Lions are 5-0, have one of the nation's top rushers in Curt Warner and a stingy defense that has recorded two shutouts and limited two other opponents to a touchdown each. But Paterno says the team still has a way to go.

"I think we've got to get better all the time," the Penn State coach said. "We have to get better in the little things — quickness, awareness. We have to be a better job on pass defense, and on our pass rush where we can get to the quarterback without sending a lot of guys."

"I've got a saying, 'Either you get better, or you get worse.' We still have to get better at everything."

Paterno may be cautious coming into this week's game since four other teams have tumbled from the top ranking this week. But he's also worried the law of averages could catch up with Penn State in its lopsided rivalry with West Virginia.

The Mountaineers, whose only loss in six games is to second-ranked Pitt, haven't beaten the Nittany Lions since 1955, managing a 14-14 tie in 1958 but losing all 22 meetings since then.

They come in this year with an explosive passing attack conducted by quarterback Oliver Luck, who has thrown for 1,163 yards and nine touchdowns, wide receiver Rich Hollins (24 catches, 205-yard average per catch) and tight end Mark Rugg (24 catches).

The WVU defense has quietly surged to national prominence. The unit, paced by linebackers Darryl Talley and Hinton Fowles, ranks fourth in the nation in total defense (317 yards per game).

"Our defense is amazing," coach Don Nehlen said. "They always come ready to play, and they keep getting better every week. They know we need a great effort from them against Penn State."

That defense will have its hands full trying to stop Warner. The junior tailback from Wyoming, W.Va., set a Penn State rushing record last weekend with 256 yards against Syracuse and currently ranks third in the nation with 838 yards. His carry average is 7.3 yards.

"He is one of the two or three great running backs in all of college football," Nehlen said. "We'll have to do a super job on defense to stop him."

Overlooked in Warner's performance last week was the continued improvement of sophomore quarterback Todd Blackledge, who completed 10 of 11 passes. After a slow start, Blackledge has hit on 52 percent of his throws.

The leaders of the Penn State defense are linebackers Chet Brumley and Matt Bradley and tackle Leo Wisniewski.

Pitt fears emotion of Syracuse

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pre-game hype on the part of coaches and players is as much a part of college football as blocking and tackling.

Before a traditional game match, for example, a coach carefully scans out-of-town newspapers, looking for so-called "bulletin board" material — quotes from the opposition designed to insult and motivate his players.

And before lipsticked games, like Saturday's between No. 2 Pitt and struggling Syracuse, the coach of the favored team traditionally flatters his opponent excessively, claiming to be fearful of upset. Such talk is dictated both by superstition and good manners; it would be boorish and perhaps a flint to declare the win in the bag.

It came as no surprise, therefore, when Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill told reporters this week that he is "concerned about Syracuse."

It was a surprise, however, when Sherrill went on to explain why his statement was "not just talk."

Sherrill said he expected compliments, such as how good back Joe Morris is good enough to turn the tide for the 1-4-1 Orangemen, and all the expected homages, such as the "on any given day, any given team, etc."

Sherrill's concern centers strictly around his talented but still young, and therefore somewhat immature, team.

"It is very difficult for a team to get up for games three straight weeks in a row," Sherrill said. "West Virginia (a 17-0 win two weeks ago) was a very emotional game, and Florida State (a 42-14 romp last Saturday) was a physical game."

He might have added that Florida State was psychologically draining since the win, coupled with Texas' upset by Arkansas and Penn State's rout of Syracuse, helped vault Penn

State and Pitt to No. 1 and No. 2. That means everyone already is talking about the Penn State-Pitt game Nov. 28 and how it will decide the national championship.

But it won't if Pitt gets bumped off by one of the five fairly weak opponents it plays between now and then. And that could happen if Sherrill allows the Panthers to dream of the future instead of thinking about the present.

"Pitt State will take care of itself," Sherrill said. "It's better to do the little ones better than the big ones, because you'll do the big ones well naturally."

"My goal each week is to improve. If we don't improve each week then something's wrong," Sherrill added. "But I give them one Sunday. I told them people don't care what you did yesterday. They don't care if you're 5-0. It's what you do tomorrow that they care about. They'll forget what you did against Florida State if you lose to Syracuse."

If Sherrill achieves his goal, the Orangemen's best hope will be to avoid humiliation.

According to NCAA statistics, the Panthers go into the game ranked first in total defense and against the rush and ninth in scoring defense. The offense is ranked eighth in scoring and 23rd in passing, while the quarterback Dan Marino has the best passing efficiency rating.

And, according to first-year Coach Dick MacPherson, the Orangemen have only a few things to brag about: Morris, who has rushed for 527 yards and five touchdowns in six games, and kicker Gary Anderson, whose leg is both extremely strong and extremely accurate.

"We're not very good," MacPherson said.

Bills venture from under division umbrella

By United Press International

The Buffalo Bills have been getting drenched whenever they step outside their division umbrella. And here comes two more.

Buffalo, the defending AFC East champion, is 4-1 against division foes this year but the Bills have dropped their only two ventures outside the division, a 27-24 loss to Cincinnati and a 20-14 setback against Philadelphia. At 4-3, the Bills are 1-2 in games behind first-place Miami entering Sunday's game against Denver and Buffalo Coach Chuck Knox knows that Bronco-busting isn't easy in 1981.

"They have given everyone problems," says Knox, who went 7-1 against opponents outside the AFC East last year. "Craig Morton has done an outstanding job of directing the offense and the defense has been simply overpowering."

Enjoying the finest season in his 17-year NFL career, Morton is ranked as the league's premier passer, completing 65 percent of his attempts for nearly 1,700 yards and 15 touchdowns. He's been intercepted only seven times.

Rookie coach Dan Reeves, a teammate of Morton while at Dallas, is drawing raves while undergoing on-the-job training.

"He's done a great job here, a lot better than people expected," says Morton. "He has the confidence of all the players and we're playing good aggressive football."

The aggressiveness is shown most in the Broncos' defense, rated No. 1 in the NFL. Morton has also made the big play on offense — primarily a pass for a ball control Watson, who has caught 31 passes for an AFC-high 631 yards and nine TDs, including two on receptions of more than 50 yards.

Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson operates behind a marvelous offensive line which has permitted an NFL-low four sacks and he is determined to direct a ball control attack that keeps Morton and Watson off the field.

"We've got to keep the ball away from their offense and keep the ball as much as we can and we've got to score some points," says Ferguson, who has thrown 16 TD passes but was inconsistent last week in a 33-14 loss to the New York Jets.

The Bills boast some fearsome weapons of their own. Joe Cribbs is the AFC's No. 3 rusher with 501 yards and Frank Lewis shares the conference lead with Cleveland tight end Ozzie Newsome for most receptions (377) and has four 100-yard efforts in the last five games.

"It's going to be a tough, physical game," says Morton, who at 30 is one year older than Reeves. "We can't make mistakes. We made a lot of mental mistakes last week (in a 28-14 loss in Kansas City). Our offensive line didn't block well. If we're going to beat Buffalo, we're going to have to do everything right. Because physically, they'll dominate us."

at Philadelphia, Cincinnati at New Orleans, Miami at Dallas, New England at Washington and San Diego at Chicago. Houston is at Pittsburgh Monday night.

The Vikings have won five straight after an 0-2 start and lead the NFC Central by a game over Tampa Bay. Tommy Kramer has thrown four TD passes in two consecutive games and he directs the NFC's No. 1 offense. Ted Brown leads the AFC with 41 interceptions out of the backfield and has also run for 533 yards. St. Louis, 2-5, is allowing an NFC-high 27 points per game and the Cardinals' linebacker has been ravaged by injuries to Charlie Baker, Tim Kearney and Calvin Favron.

The Chiefs, 5-2, are tied with Denver and San Diego atop the AFC West and they have beaten the Raiders four out of the last five meetings. Kansas City has been very impressive running the ball and defending against the run — ranking first in the AFC in both categories. Oakland 3-4, ended a three-game scoring drought last week, but the Raiders have managed only 81 points and third-year quarterback Marc Wilson will again start for veteran Jim Plunkett.

NFL notes

Seattle fans totally disenchanted with coaching of Patera

©1981 Chicago Sun-Times

Washington, New Orleans, Seattle, Baltimore and Chicago have the NFL's worst records at 1-6. But perhaps the most disappointed fans are those in Seattle, where coach Jack Patera has never been very popular. Worse, Patera has four years left on a five-year contract.

Patera regularly suffers through a grilling on a weekly radio talk show from callers who openly wonder why he doesn't quit. Plus, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer recently ran a "Patera Playbook" contest that received a response from more than 500 readers who submitted play suggestions for Patera to use inside the 10-yard line.

More than one reader mailed a play suggestion labeled: "Patera, down and out the door."

The winner of the contest received two tickets to last week's Seattle Giants game in the Kingdom, an embarrassing 24-0 Seahawk defeat.

Former Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer always gets a glazed look in his eyes at the end of that televised beer commercial in which former Chief Fred Williamson asks: "The flanker does a down-and-out, the weakside linebacker blitzes. What does the noseguard do? Huh? Huh?"

Recently six Houston Oilers attempted to come to Kilmer's rescue. So did:

Their answers: Coach Ed Biles: "He'd rush the gaps on either side of the center."

Noseguard Ken Kennard: "Rush the passer as usual."

Reserve noseguard Darryl Siskind: "This noseguard goes after the Gatorade."

Defensive coordinator Dick Nolan: "He calls for help, then does a down-and-out himself."

Wide receiver Kenny Burroughs: "He'd probably take a dive."

Linebacker Daryl Hunt: "He'd probably get sick on (teentier) Carl Mauck."

Too many people in the Big Ten have overrated the abilities of Ohio State quarterback Art Schlichter. Doug Donley has not.

Donley is a rookie wide receiver with the Dallas Cowboys and former teammate of Schlichter's at Ohio State.

"In college," says Donley, "I had to break off a lot of my routes because the passes weren't always there. Art threw the ball so hard that it wobbled. Sometimes it was pretty hard to catch."

AFTER SEVEN WEEKS:

—Denver wide receiver Steve Watson and San Diego running back Chuck Muncie lead the NFL in touchdowns with nine apiece.

—Minnesota cornerback Tommy Kramer leads the NFC in passing, and Viking running back Ted Brown leads the NFL in receptions (43).

—Miami's David Woodley has the league's lowest interception percentage.

—Baltimore's defense has allowed 20 touchdowns passes, six more than any other team in the league.

—Green Bay still hasn't allowed its opponents to score in the first period, yet the Packers still haven't won a home game in four tries.

—The Dallas defense leads the NFL in interceptions with 17, yet ranks last in the NFC in pass defense.

San Francisco coach Bill Walsh delivered this rather interesting soliloquy recently when highlights of his team's stunning 45-14 upset over Dallas were not shown during halftime of ABC-TV's Monday Night Football broadcast the following evening:

"We're not accepted nationally, obviously. The football elitists — jockstrap elitists — don't consider us in the comfort zone. There are power sources — influence sources — in the National Football League; groupies... 45-year-old men that are football groupies that prefer that we not exist, so they can hold onto their football contacts and associations or power groups."

Walsh said it was obvious ABC feared diluting interest in its upcoming Dallas-Los Angeles Sunday night game by showing highlights of the 49ers' surprisingly easy victory over the Cowboys.

San Francisco is 5-2, and alone atop the NFC West. If the 49ers continue to win, says Walsh, "there isn't any way we can be cut out of people's schedules and be completely ignored."

Meanwhile, ABC-TV reports its ratings for Monday Night Football through six weeks are 21.4, the best ever. Those numbers will surely drop when the figures from last Monday's Bears-Lions game trickle into the computer.

"Last Monday's game at Pontiac," said former Bear linebacker Doug Buffone, "turned into one of the biggest nightmarish in football history."

THE RUMOR MILL: Former Notre Dame and Green Bay coach Dan Devine, a close personal friend of New England owner Billy Sullivan, will take over as coach of the Patriots when Sullivan gives around to firing Ron Erhardt... Former Patriot coach Chuck Fairbanks will accept the job in Green Bay when New Packer president Robert Parins gets around to firing Bart Starr... One theory making the rounds concerning Bear owner George Halas's recent hiring of former Bear coach Jim Dooley as an offensive consultant, is called "The Dooley as Stoolie Theory." Halas, maintains the theory, intends to fire several key people in the organization at the end of the year, and Dooley is a bust in the CFL this year, will return to the NFL in 1982, probably with the Baltimore owner Robert Irsay will hire Hamilton Tiger-Cats' coach Frank Kush when he gets around to firing Mike McCormack... Former Rams quarterback Vince Ferragamo, a bust in the CFL this year, will return to the NFL in 1982, probably with the Oakland Raiders... Washington quarterback Joe Theismann will be traded after the season.

NOTES AND QUOTES: California's Gov. Jerry Brown recently signed a bill requiring player agents to register with the State Department of Industrial Labor, pay filing and licensing fees and post a $10,000 bond... Last year Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe turned down more than $250,000 in commercial endorsements, saying he cherished his privacy. "It's just I tried to stay in the background because I didn't want my face well-known," he said. "But it became apparent that was a lost cause. So I said, 'Who am I kidding?'"

Braves hire ex-Met Joe Torre as manager

ATLANTA (UPI) — Joe Torre, fired by the New York Mets after five straight losing seasons, was named Friday to replace Bobby Cox as manager of the Atlanta Braves.

Torre, who signed a three-year contract with Atlanta club owner Ted Turner, said he's "about four and a half years better" and more confident than when he began managing the Mets in May, 1977. "I feel I'm better in all areas."

"What we want to do is win," said Turner. "That's the only thing that counts."

Details of the contract were not announced, but Al Thormwell, a Braves executive, said Turner agreed to Torre's request for a three-year contract instead of the shorter term he had sought.

Sources said Torre would be paid $80,000 by the Braves. In his first season and $150,000 each in the two successive years.

The Braves have finished no better than fourth in the last seven years, but Torre said he wanted the Braves to go into spring training with the idea that they're going to win the pennant, not just do better than last year.

There's "no substitute for being positive," said Torre.

The 41-year-old Torre, a former Bear who also played for St. Louis and the New York Mets, said the club has untapped talent and he hopes to "make things happen in a very positive way."

He blamed the Braves' not-so-hot season this year (they finished fifth) on "inconsistency in the pitching staff." He called pitching "the only thing you can count on" and said he firmly believed that "good pitching can stop good hitting."

There was no immediate announcement concerning members of the Mets' coaching staff who might join Torre in Atlanta, but there was speculation that former pitchers Bob Gibson and Rube Walker would be making the change.

Torre said he and John Mullen, Braves general manager, would confer after the World Series.

He said defense was also very important, but he wanted to "try to improve every position we have."

"Offensively," Torre said, "the Braves are better than the Mets were, and the Braves are further along than the Mets were when I took over."

Turner told reporters he thought having a proven hitter as "skipper of the team" could only help the Braves become more consistent.

Torre was the first Atlanta Brave to hit a home run in a regular season game in the Fulton County Stadium. He was traded to St. Louis in 1969 and was named the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1971 with a .363 batting average that included 137 RBIs and 24 homers. In 1974, he was traded to the New York Mets.

Torre averaged .297 for his playing career — 2,209 games — hit 322 home runs and knocked in 1,185 runs before turning player-manager for the Mets in May 1977 — a very tough undertaking — and was released as a player less than one month later.

Briefly in sports

ISU junior varsity tops BYU

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho State exploded for three fourth-quarter touchdowns and went on to defeat Brigham Young 30-6 in junior varsity football Friday.

Don Horn and Mike Busch each tossed a short-scoring pass to Jeff Daggon, and Jeff Sprowls returned a Robbly Bosco interception 23 yards for a touchdown to lead ISU's surge.

The Bengals out-gained BYU 363 yards to 299, with 296 through the air. Horn went 8 for 11 for 136 yards and two scores. Bush completed 11 of 19 for 160 and one TD.

BYU had five turnovers, two of them on Brent Koetter interceptions, and could only score on JT- and 29-yard field goals by Chris Whitting.

ISU had held a 9-3 halftime lead on a 10-yard pass from Horn to Dave Vandergriff and a 39-yard Robb Morton field goal.

Gun club opens turkey series

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Gun Club will kickoff its weekly series of turkey shoots Nov. 1, announces spokesman Ron Pope.

Pope said competition will begin at 11 a.m. at the club grounds, located on Washington Street North at Snake River canyon.

Care will be taken in squadding shooters to prevent novices shooting against more experienced competitors.

Blackfoot Reservoir still open

JEROME — Blackfoot Reservoir will remain open through November, contrary to Swen's estimate of an Oct. 31 closure.

Bill Webb, regional supervisor for the Idaho Fish and Game Department, said resort owners in the area had agreed reactively to Swen's comment that the Blackfoot Reservoir season closed with the month.

Canada enters International

LAUREL, Md. (UPI) — Rainbow Connection will represent Canada in the 30th running of the $250,000 Washington, D.C. International Nov. 7 at Laurel Race Course, track officials said.

Rainbow Connection, a 3-year-old filly, came from last to finish second behind Open Call last weekend in the Rothmans International at Woodbine, Canada.

She has made seven starts this season, winning twice and finishing second twice.

Rainbow Connection, part of Doug Cameron's Fleetwood Stable will be ridden by Fernando Toro.

Brewers, Astros swap hurlers

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Brewers Friday traded right-handed pitcher Rickey "Buster" Keston to the Houston Astros in an even-up exchange for right-handed Pete Ladd.

Ladd was acquired from the Astros' Tucson, Ariz., farm club in the Pacific Coast League. Ladd, 25, had a 5-4 record with a 3.38 ERA this season.

Keston, 24, appeared in 17 games with the Brewers this season and had a 1-0 record and 5.09 ERA.

Ladd has been assigned to the Brewers' farm team in Vancouver, a Triple-A affiliate in the Pacific Coast League, and Keston will be sent to Tucson.

Steinfort takes kick lessons

DENVER (UPI) — Fred Steinfort, the Denver Bronco placekicker who successfully booted only 5 of 14 field goal attempts this season, received a few pointers this week from Penn State soccer coach Walter Bahr in efforts to emerge from his slump.

Bahr, the father of NFL place kickers Matt Bahr of the Cleveland Browns and Chris Bahr of the Oakland Raiders, spent two practice sessions observing and offering advice before returning to Pennsylvania on Thursday.

He assessed Steinfort's problem as being "a lack of forward motion toward his target."

Steinfort, who had a 76.5 percent success record last year and was the last Bronco contract holdover for the 1981 season, seemed pleased with the results of Bahr's tutoring but offered no comment.

In another move to get Steinfort out of the doldrums, backup quarterback Steve Deberg has been assigned his new holder, replacing punter Luke Prestridge.

Matt Robinson, backup quarterback for the Broncos' Sunday opponent — the Buffalo Bills — served as Steinfort's holder last season when he was a Bronco signal caller.

Seattle takes Royals pitcher

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Kansas City Royals Friday traded Manny Castillo to Seattle and re-signed Lee May to a one-year contract for 1982.

Castillo, traded to the Mariners for a player to be named later, had played third base for the Omaha Royals, where he was the American Association's most valuable player in 1981. He batted .335 with 10 home runs and 91 RBI.

A Royals spokesman said Castillo had no more options with the Royals, and had to be traded Friday or he would have been subject to the major league winter draft.

May, 38, used mainly as a pinch hitter, hit .291 with eight RBI for the Royals in 1981. Details of his contract were not divulged.

Barker upsets Tracy Austin

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Tracy Austin, winner of four of the previous five tournaments she entered, lost 7-6, 2-6, 6-3 to Britain's Sue Barker in the quarterfinals of the $100,000 Daihatsu tennis tournament Friday.

Barker, who had beaten Austin twice before, will meet another American, Barbara Potter, in the semifinals. Potter downed West Germany's Claudia Kohde 6-3, 6-4 earlier Friday, while Anne Smith reached the first semifinal of her 3-year professional career when she beat another West German, Sylvia Hanika, 6-3, 6-0.

Smith was awaiting the outcome of the fourth quarterfinal between fellow American Pam Shriver and Yugoslavia's Mima Jausovec before learning her semifinal opponent.

For two sets it seemed Austin, from Rolling Hills, Calif., would add another victory to her impressive run of 28 matches with only one defeat since Wimbledon. She conceded a closely fought opening set in a tiebreak, but overcame her 25-year-old opponent in the second, winning it 6-2.

redoubled. When North jumped to four hearts, South felt that he had to bid six. A look at dummy caused South to do some real thinking. It seemed that West would need all missing black honors for his takeout double. Was there any way to handle that situation?

South won the diamond in dummy and ruffed a diamond with his ace of trumps. Then he led his queen of trumps to dummy's king and ruffed dummy's high diamond with his jack of trumps. Then he led a trump to dummy's 10, led the 10 of spades and let it ride.

West won the trick and had three ways to take South's contract. If he led his last diamond, South would discard a spade in dummy and ruff in his hand with his last trump. Then he would play ace-jack of spades and take a ruffing finesse. If West failed to cover, Either way he would get to discard a club from dummy.

If either black suit is led, South wins as cheaply as possible; cashes the other black ace and runs trumps to squeeze poor West out of a black king.
